ORLANDO AGREES TO NEW DRAFT

Paris, June 13.—The Council of Five devoted a large part of the day to perfecting and approving the substitute treaty, which will be presented to the Germans as soon as it is printed. When the document is finally approved, it will be printed in its entirety and replace the previous treaty document. Before Premier Orlando departed for Italy last night he approved the complete draft. The Japanese delegation was represented at today's session that Japan might give final approval to the treaty.

JAPANESE WARSHIPS RUSHED TO CHINA

Tokio, June 13.—The Japanese cruiser Suma and the gunboat Haga have been rushed to Wa-Hu and Shanghai to protect Japanese interests against a boycott inaugurated by the Chinese, who are demanding an annulment of the peace conference decision granting the Japanese territorial rights on Shantung Peninsula.

Another warship has been sent to Canton. The anti-Japanese agitation is reported to have spread to Hankow and Nanking.

Washington, June 13—The resignation of three high Chinese officials as a result of the agitation growing out of the Shantung controversy was reported in advices reaching the State Department this afternoon. The officials are the Chinese Minister to Japan, Chang Chung Hsing; Tsao Julin, Minister of Commerce, and Lo-chang Lu, chief of the Bureau of Communications. In Shanghai, the advices added, hundreds of Chinese are wearing badges indicating a boycott of Japanese goods.

Wilson Refuses to Send Treaty to Senate

By International News Service.

Paris, June 13.—Secretary of State Lansing, at the direction of President Wilson, has notified the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he is at present unable to comply with the Senate demand for presentation of the peace treaty with Germany, inasmuch as the document is not yet signed.

He added that the treaty had not been placed before any legislative body and will not be until it is signed.

COOLIDGE URGES PROBE OF THE H. C. OF L.

In Special Message to Legislature He Recommends Special Commission Investigate

A special commission to investigate the high cost of living and report its findings to the next Legislature, was recommended in a message by Governor Coolidge today which was read in the House and Senate.

"The public ought to be informed as to whether prices in general are fair and reasonable", the message states. "If they are, they are willing to pay them. If not, a public recognition of that condition will tend to adjust prices to a reasonable basis. Government fails as an administrator of justice if it permits to go unchallenged an extortionate charge upon the public."

IRISH SITUATION "VERY SICK," SAYS DUNRAVEN

London, June 13.—A Federal solution for the whole of the United Kingdom was advocated by Lord Dunraven in the London Times today. He described the Irish situation as "very sick." It is impossible to continue without action, and to attempt to repeal home rule would be intolerable, Lord Dunraven argued.

ON GUARD AGAINST 'REDS'

Department of Justice Men Are Ready for Possible Wave of Terrorism

Washington, June 13.—Department of Justice agents throughout the country have been instructed to take every precaution against possible bomb outrages on July 4th, it was learned today.

While officials of the department claimed to have no evidence to show that plans had been made by radicals to renew their campaign of terrorism on that date, they admitted there had been frequent, although vague, rumors that Independence Day might be selected for an attempt to carry out further plots.

Vimy Bomber Flight Attempt Held Up Another Day

By International News Service.

St. John's, N. F., June 13.—The crew of the Vickers-Vimy bomber early this afternoon announced the postponement of their attempt to cross the Atlantic until tomorrow.

An hour before the start was to have been made it was stated that the wheels of the plane were more seriously damaged in landing yesterday than was at first believed. It was deemed advisable to postpone the start until repairs could be made.

KRONSTADT BOMBARDED BY BRITISH WARSHIPS

Stockholm, June 13.—British warships are bombarding the Russian fortress of Kronstadt, formerly one of the chief defenses of Petrograd on the sea side, according to press dispatches received here today from Helsingfors. There are indications that the Bolshevik forces are preparing to evacuate the place, the reports said.

12,000 MACKEREL ARE CAUGHT BY CREW IN DAY

Sydney, N. S., June 13.—An unprecedented haul of fish is reported off the southern coasts of Nova Scotia, one fishing boat that put in to port today reported catching 12,000 mackerel on Tuesday.

'Ja Da Ja Da' Cupid's Gone and Done It Now

Did you hear about the hard luck marriage, Jinx wed Jinx?

It took place today and it was the only mating in the celebrated Jinx family on the calendar for 1919. The bride was Miss Friday Jinx, one of the regular weekly visitors to this city.

Her one-day husband was that famous numerical unfortunate, Thirteen Jinx, one of the bride's elbow cousins.

The ceremony was performed by Old Doctor Hoodoo at the Hall of Horrors on Tuffenuff street.

The bride was attended by four bridesmaids, Miss Fortune, Miss Take, Miss Step and Miss Cue. The bridegroom was attended by his chum Fuller Payne.

The double-cross service was used. Musical selections included the Misfortune Beethoven's Funeral March, and "The Hangman's Dirge" Little Lolla Nutt recited, "The Face on the Barroom Floor."

The ceremony was performed amidst the bitter sobs of all present. The only thing that marred the ingalitious completeness of the auspicious occasion was the perfect June weather.

The bridal couple started on their honeymoon of one day in a hearse. Everybody wished them all the bad luck possible. They promised in turn to bring all the bad luck they could on the world.

Tomorrow they separate as per calendar, not to meet until a year from today—Friday, June 13, 1920. (Look up for yourself.)

BANK MESSENGER FOILS SIX NEW YORK BANDITS

New York, June 13.—Before the eyes of hundreds of pedestrians six automobile bandits attempted to rob James Ryan, bank messenger, of a satchel containing $100,000 in securities as he emerged from the Colonial Bank this noon.

Ryan engaged in a pistol battle with the bandits, wounding one of them. The robbers dragged the wounded man into their automobile and escaped.

LUCKENBACK IN CRASH RETURNS TO PORT

The U. S. navy transport E. F. Luckenback which sailed from this port yesterday, struck a sunken object while off Boston Light vessel today and was forced to return to Commonwealth Pier. Preliminary examination disclosed that her propeller was badly damaged and she will be moved to the navy yard, where she will be drydocked for repairs.

"GHOST HUNT" IN ANDOVER HOUSE

Lawrence, June 13.—Mrs. Bessie May (Skeels) Lundgren attempted suicide by gas the day she was arrested for the murder of Miss Florence W. Gay of Andover, according to Chief of Police Frank M. Smith of Andover.

Her effort was nearly successful. She lay in a stupor for some time afterward, and it was necessary to remove her in an ambulance.

Chief Smith admitted on cross-examination in Essex County Court that he had not himself seen the attempt, but was told of it by State Officer Griffin, who made the actual arrest. He arrived shortly afterward.

"Where was Mrs. Skeels when you arrived?" Chief Smith was asked by Attorney Hale.

"She was lying on a couch," he replied. "Mrs. Peabody was on her knees. Emerson was standing by the door watching her. She seemed to be in a fainting condition."

The chief of police was closely examined as to whether he himself smelled gas when he entered the room. He said he did not.

SMILES AT CHIEF

The accused woman displayed keen interest in the testimony of the police official and several times attempted into an upright position the better to follow his expressions and his statements. As he left the stand he smiled, and leaning over her chair, whispered to her. She responded with a faint smile but did not speak.

Mrs. Lundgren believed the house of Miss Florence W. Gay was haunted two years ago according to testimony of Chief of Police Smith.

POLICE CLAIM THAT BOY ADMITS ROBBERIES

In the arrest of James Woods fifteen years old, of Atlantic street, Winthrop, the police believe they have solved the mystery of a series of shooting breaks in that place within the past few weeks.

Woods appeared in the Chelsea police court today on a charge of breaking and entering in the night time a cottage on Oak Island, Revere, and larceny of clothing valued at $15. Judge Hosmer continued the case until June 20th.

The police claim that Woods has confessed to a number of breaks in Winthrop and given several instances of the manner in which he committed them. In one occasion, they say, the youth declared he was in a cellar in the Winthrop area when he heard the police coming. He slid down the top of the stone chest in the back of the store and remained safely hidden while the police searched the premises.

will be presented on Monday, and a reply must be given within seven days, according to the Central News today. The text will be published on Tuesday.

According to International News Service advices the reply will be accompanied by an ultimatum that the Germans sign the treaty "or accept the consequences."

No discussion of the reply will be permitted.

President Wilson probably will leave for Brussels on Sunday night, returning to Paris on Wednesday. He is much gratified over General Pershing's announcement that 287,000 American troops will sail for home this month, breaking all records.

The proposal was made that they sail home from Antwerp, but this was vetoed by high naval authorities, who pointed out that there are still many floating mines in the lane which any steamers putting out from that port would traverse.

It is now regarded as most likely that the President will sail from Brest the latter part of next week.

It is generally accepted as a fact that the Germans must agree to the treaty terms without further squabbling. It has been made plain to them that refusal would result in far more drastic terms.

The Hungarian situation was again under consideration by the Council of Four today. The situation in Hungary is entirely different from that in Russia. The Hungarian soviet government has not robbed nor murdered by the wholesale and is apparently safeguarding private property interests.

In any event the present negotiations carried on through an exchange of letters between the allies and Bela Kun, the Hungarian dictator) are intended to define absolutely whether it is possible to make peace with a regime at Budapest that will represent the Hungarian people.

Copenhagen, June 13 — President Ebert of Germany and Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States, have both left for the meeting of the National Assembly at Weimar, which will pass upon the acceptance or rejection of the peace treaty, said a dispatch from Berlin today. The terms are expected to be handed to the assemblymen tomorrow.

Labor Troubles in Italy and France Disturb the Peace Conference

By International News Service.

Washington, June 13.—The growing seriousness of the labor situation in France and Italy is causing even more alarm in peace conference circles than is revealed in press dispatches from Paris, according to information reaching here today.

If violent disorders accompany the threatened general strike in France next Monday and the government is unable to put down the trouble at once, it is believed possible here that Germany may ignore the allied ultimatum and await the outcome of the labor struggle before signing the peace treaty.

The exact situation in Italy, where a general strike is being threatened in conjunction with the French movement, is not made clear in advices received here. But there is no doubt but that France now faces the most serious labor disturbances in many years, with certain radical elements attempting not only the overthrow of the Clemenceau government, but a revolution.

Considerable bodies of French troops are reported to have been assembled near Paris, Lyons and other great industrial centers where the socialists are strongest, and the government is prepared to deal harshly with any revolutionary attempts. It is pointed out at the same time that among the men threatening to go on strike are thousands of demobilized soldiers, who may make trouble in a clash with the military.

A large percentage of the French army has been demobilized, leaving only the army of occupation in Germany, the forces on duty in France to prevent internal troubles and the usual fort garrisons.

The Germans are reported to be hoping that the strike disturbances will become so serious as to cause the withdrawal of some of the French troops of occupation to move in the situation enabling Germany to adopt a more independent attitude in negotiating with the allies.

Diaz Leaves for Italy To Organize Defenses On Carinthian Frontier

By International News Service.

Paris, June 13.—General Diaz, the Italian commander-in-chief, has left for Italy to organize Italian defenses against the Jugo-Slavs on the Carinthian frontier.

Recent reports stated that the Jugo-Slavs had invaded Carinthia, attacking the Austrians. Later it was said that an armistice had been signed and that hostilities had ceased.

General Diaz was accompanied by Premier Orlando, head of the Italian delegation.

A secret session of the Italian Chamber of Deputies will be held on June 19 to consider the whole situation.

Before he left Paris Premier Orlando made a statement detailing his refusal to negotiate with the Jugo-Slavs.

YOUTH WALKS 78 MILES TO BECOME A U. S. MARINE

Richmond, Va., June 13.—Ralph Walter Slater ambled over from his home at Mount Tyre, Va., to Charleston, a distance of twenty-six miles, to join the Marine Corps. Having successfully passed the examination he strolled over home, another twenty-six miles, to tell his folks good-by. Completing his farewell, he made his way over the West Virginia mountains back to the recruiting office. In all Slater walked seventy-eight miles to become a marine.

FRENCH PUT BAN ON ROMANOFF 'JOY' PARTIES

By ROBERT J. PREW.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, June 2 (by mail)—The Romanoffs, former reigning family of Russia, are under the darkest clouds in France. The republic has decreed that none of the old-time grand dukes of Russia, who used to lead the pre-war gayeties of Montmarte, may return to France except to live in the strictest seclusion. Those who want to live in Paris or at Deauville or on the Riviera must first satisfy the French authorities that they intend to lead quiet lives.

Already one of their number, Grand Duke Boris, son of Grand Duke Vladimir and nephew of the ex-Czar, has been expelled from French soil. Disregarding the French ban, he came to Paris with forged passports, accompanied by a woman.

Had he been content to hide himself incognito in some quiet corner of the country the complacent authorities probably would have left him in peace. But Boris could not forget that in 1912 he was the lion of the "grande saison" at Deauville and that during the ensuing Winter he was a prince of all the Montmartre fetes.

DRUNK AT MOTOR PARTY.

He became intoxicated at a poker party at a financier's house near Paris and insulted his host and hostess, as well as other guests. The next day he was given forty-eight hours to leave France. He thereupon made for Spain to enjoy the amenities of the San Sebastian season, but before he could cross the frontier King Alfonso sent word that he was "undesirable" and with his companion he was held up at the frontier station of Hendaye.

Preceded by a telegram to King Victor Emmanuel asking for the hospitality of Italian soil, the grand duke next made his way to Monte Carlo and here he received word from Rome that he could find sanctuary across the Italian border. The Grand Duke Nicholas, former commander-in-chief of the Russian army, and Grand Duke Peter are also living in Italy.

Unless the Romanoffs return to favor with the republican government, American hostesses in Paris will regret the loss of some of their liveliest guests.

GUESTS OF AMERICANS.

Before the war broke out the grand dukes were in great demand here for all afternoon and evening functions. Prominent among their entertainers were Mrs. W. B. Leeds, Mrs. William Ellis Corey, Mrs. Van Vankenburgh Snow Duchess of Oporto), Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mrs. William Moore, Princess Albert Ranziwill (formerly Dorothy Deacon of Boston), Duchess De La Rochefoucauld and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr.

Their guests included the Grand Dukes Vladimir, Boris, Cyril, Paul and Dmitri, and a prominent figure in the same colony was the Grand Duchess Anastasio of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, also Romanoff and the mother of the former Crown Princess of Germany. She had been hanged from the German court by the ex-Kaiser, who thought her a flighty woman.

The grand duchess and the grand dukes quickly gained the reputation of being the biggest tango "fans" of Paris, and they were in great demand among the American society women here. Mostly they showed a marked predilection for the festivities staged by Mrs. Leeds and Mrs. Corey, especially for the latter's dances at Chateau de Villegenis, near Versailles.

DE VALERA MAY PAY VISIT TO BOSTON

BY ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable Dispatch.

London, June 13.—There are the strongest possible reasons for believing De Valera, President of the "Irish Republic," now missing for twelve days since he left Dublin ostensibly for England, is either on the way to the United States or already has arrived there.

From a leader of the Sinn Fein organization in London I learn that if De Valera were in London he, my informant, would know it.

He added that he had information confirming his belief that the Irish president had embarked at an Irish port, either for New York or Boston.

"It is not difficult to get to America without a passport," said my informant. "Dr. MacCartan, the Sinn Fein delegate now in America, got there and recently Harry Boland, general secretary of the Sinn Fein organization in Ireland, reached the United States without a passport, and I believe he has already revealed himself and commenced propaganda work in America."

The sinn Fein organizer continued: "Never expecting the British government to grant De Valera passports to Paris, we have been anticipating a journey by him to the United States, where his presence at this moment would give a tremendous impetus to sympathy in America for the Irish movement for freedom.

"We believe that after the Irish-American commissioners Frank P. Walsh and ex-Governor Dunne of Illinois, report conditions in Ireland as they found them the American people need to hear confirmation from De Valera's lips."

MEXICAN REBELS WIN IN CLASH WITH FEDERALS

By International News Service.

El Paso, June 13.—Federal outposts and rebels are fighting west of Juarez, Mexico, according to couriers riding in from the scene of action early today.

East of Juarez Martin Lopez's men have occupied the Weber ranch house almost in the suburbs and have succeeded in driving away a troop of Federal cavalry sent to dislodge them.

Rebel troops under direction of General Felipe Angeles are reported on three sides of Juarez today, preparing for an attack. A concerted attack on the Federal forces holding the city is expected momentarily.

American military authorities along the border are watching the situation closely and are continuing all necessary precautions. The garrison at Fort Bliss was reinforced today by the arrival of two battalions of the twenty-fourth infantry from Columbus, N. M.

'BABY DOLL' AND 'SNEAKS', WESTBORO SUSPECTS, SOUGHT IN PORTLAND

NEW TRAIL IN DEATH CHASE

Chapman, Robbers' Victim, Warned by Gypsies of Impending Harm

Westboro, June 12.—While State detectives and medical experts are busily engaged in this town on the various phases of the murder of Dwight P. Chapman, Chief of Police William Johnson, with two residents of the town, are in Portland, Me., seeking for the "Baby Doll" and "Sneaks," her husband.

The Baker couple, known under those endearing names by such as came in contact with them, are supposed to be in the Maine city and a vigorous search for them is being prosecuted there. Effort is being made to locate the expressman who took their trunk from the depot in Portland. As yet he has not been located, but it is thought that before nightfall he will have been discovered.

GAVE ANOTHER NAME.

It was definitely established today that the Bakers had made application to the Lyman School for Boys for employment. The name Smith was used there, and the information was given that they were residing in Westboro.

State Detective Molt is also trying to connect Baker with the attempt made by a man to secure employment at the Medfield State Hospital. At Medfield the application was made in the name of "Poole," and the statement, made over the telephone, that the applicant was residing in Westboro.

As yet the medical experts are unable to agree on the probable time Chapman was killed. Medical Examiner Knight of this town still insists that Chapman had been dead but eighteen hours when his body was discovered on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This assertion created considerable doubt, for the authorities are convinced that the last time the aged man was seen alive was on Sunday.

PERFORM NEW AUTOPSY.

The purpose of the new autopsy today, in which Medical Examiner Frederick H. Baker of Worcester will co-operating, is to determine if possible whether or not death occurred more than eighteen hours previous to the discovery. If the reports of townspeople be correct, it would seem reasonable to assume that Chapman was dead well in excess of forty-eight hours prior to the finding of the body.

"Baby Doll" and "Sneaks" left Westboro on Monday morning aboard a Boston train, and the belief is entertained that Chapman was brutally slain some time after midnight on Sunday and that his slayers left hurriedly on the first morning train.

Chapman knew harm and possible robbery was coming to him. He learned this when some gypsy women told his fortune. The gypsies told him the date would be "about the 13th."

Mrs. Baker, the blonde "baby doll," and her husband, Harry, have been traced by their baggage to Portland, Me. The police would like to question them regarding what, if anything, they may know about the murder and robbery, as they were living at the Chapman home up until the day of the crime.

The story of the gypsies is told by Mrs. Mary Franklin, cook at the Central House.

SPOKE ABOUT COUPLE.

"It was about three weeks ago," she said, "and Chappie"—as Chapman was known in this town—"was in the kitchen of the hotel. The gypsies came in and he laughed and said he was going to read his fortune told. The women told him that he had better look out for a young couple or they would do him up. They said the couple would appear about the 14th or 15th of the month and he should look out for them.

"They told him to hide his money away or he would lose it, as the couple were after it. At that time Chappie had a woman rooming at the house—I should say she was about thirty or thirty-five—and that very day he made her give up the room and I guess he thought she might be the one.

"I know this sounds like a crazy story and I don't believe in fortune telling or a bit of anything any gypsy said or could say, but that is exactly what they told Chappie right in the hotel not more than seven or three weeks ago."

SAYS RUSSIANS MAY RETALIATE FOR RAID

Attaches of Mission in New York Warn of Possible Reprisals by Bolsheviki

By International News Service.

New York, June 12.—Attaches of the Russian Soviet mission to the United States gave warning today that Americans in Russia might be endangered by the action of members of the New York State constabulary and private detectives who raided the mission's offices here yesterday.

The State troopers were armed with a search warrant from a city magistrate and also with papers issued in return from the New York State legislative committee meeting here to investigate revolutionary movements within the State. They summoned L. A. Martens, head of the mission, and A. Kellock, director of the commercial department, who were examined by the committee behind closed doors.

Santari Nuerteva, secretary of the mission, today characterized the raid as an outrage. He said that, despite the fact that the Bolshevik government, of which Martens is the "Ambassador to the United States," has not been recognized at Washington, the Bolsheviki treated the American Ambassador in Petrograd with the greatest courtesy and protected the lives and property of Americans in Russia. Other attaches said that when news of the raid reaches Russia it way be difficult to restrain the Bolsheviks from making reprisals against American citizens and their property.

METROPOLITAN WATER STRIKE THREATENED

Clinton, June 13.—Fifty employes of the Metropolitan Water and Sewage Board threatened today to go on strike unless they receive increases of twenty per cent. increase in wages. They will take up their demands with the State Commission. The workmen allege that they were promised the increase but have been told the board has been guilty of bad faith. A general strike, which even union heads do not expect, would cut off the water supply of many cities about here, and possibly Boston, were with a complete supply for Boston.

NEW BROCKTON "MODEL" FACTORY TO COST $150,000

Brockton, June 13.—Plans for a model factory, to cost $150,000, the only one of its kind in this part of the country, are being furthered by local business men who have formed a corporation. The building will be built along strictly sanitary lines, white enamel finish without shafting, and will be electrically operated. The sanitaries will be of the modern style, open plumbing, and a complete vacuum cleaning system will be installed.

ALICE DREXEL'S HUSBAND IN 2 ROMANCES

Seattle Discovers Captain Barrett Was Once in Runaway Match With Coast Girl

Seattle, Wash., June 12.—The recent elopement in New York of Captain William Barrett of the United States Air Service and Miss Alice Gordon Drexel—one of the Drexel heiresses—was not Captain Barrett's first matrimonial venture. News of the "surprise" wedding, which involved a secret trip to a New Rochelle preacher without the consent of the Drexel family, was received with much interest here when the identity of Captain Barrett became known today.

Seven years ago Captain Barrett, then a midshipman just out of the navy, eloped with and married Miss Kathleen Baillie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Baillie of this city. For a time the young folks resided in Portland, making occasional visits to the parents of Mrs. Barrett.

WIFE WINS DIVORCE.

Two years ago Mrs. Barrett obtained a divorce without contest from her husband, and with her five-year-old son is now residing in this city. Mr. Baillie is a former partner of Balfour, Guthrie & Co., widely known shipping firm of the United States and England.

These facts concerning the career of Captain Barrett became known today when advices from the East said that in a personal history statement made to the War Department at the time Captain Barrett joined the United States Signal Corps in October 1917, he gave the name of Kathleen Barrett, 25, as his nearest relative and the address "care" of Alexander Baillie, Seattle.

BORN IN OREGON.

Captain Barrett was born at Hillsboro, Ore., November 5, 1887, and was a midshipman in the United States Naval Academy from June, 1906, until June, 1910, when he passed. Mrs. Barrett came to Puget Sound and there met Miss Baillie. Over the objection of their parents they eloped and were married.

GEN. LOMBARD TO LEAD BIG ARLINGTON PARADE

Arrangements for Arlington's welcome home celebration in honor of the men and fathers of the town who have served in the war, are practically completed. The festivities will come on Saturday, June 21. General Walter F. Lombard, chairman of the committee, will be chief marshal of a parade of the service men in the afternoon. General Lombard has consented to be marshal at the special request of the Arlington Post of the American Legion, formed this week.

Interesting exercises will be held on the field. Members of the local American Legion post will provide games. At the conclusion of this program, the veterans of the late war will march to the Robbins Memorial Town Hall, where they will be guests of the town at a banquet. A vaudeville show will also be given in the Town Hall. The celebration will close with a military ball.

IRISH COUNCIL LAUDS AMERICAN EDITORIALS

Friends of Irish Freedom, Boston Council, held their regular meeting in Hibernian Building, 184 Dudley St., Roxbury, with President Joseph Smith presiding. P. J. Moynihan, chairman of the organization committee, reported that five branches were in process of formation and would soon have their delegates in the council. President Smith enlarged the original committee by placing two representatives on it from each branch. The editorial on the Irish question in the Boston American of June 12 was strongly endorsed by the Boston Council. Reference was made to other Hearst editorials in behalf of Irish freedom and human rights.

DEMANDS NEIGHBOR PAY $50,000 FOR LOST LOVE

Mrs. Ruby J. Ray of Somerville for whose lost affection her husband, Ernest J. Ray, has filed suit against his neighbor, Clarence E. Mitten.

A $50,000 damage suit which Ernest J. Ray of Somerville has filed against his neighbor, Clarence E. Mitten of No. 22 Lincoln street, Somerville, for alienation of the affections of the wife of the plaintiff's wife, Mrs. Ruby J. Ray, recalls equity proceedings between the Rays on June 4 at which Ray said he crawled into his wife's bedroom through a cellar window and found his wife and Mitten on the premises.

The equity hearing was on a petition brought by Mrs. Ray to have her husband ordered to return to her future in her lodging house at No. 20 Lincoln street, also to account for rents.

She declared that on the preceding April 5 Ray entered the house by a cellar window and drove her out. Ray said that he went in by the window because it was the only way he could find entrance. He added that he was accosted by his wife who made demonstrations with a revolver, that he disarmed her, followed her into a room and found Mitten coming out of a room with a hair brush in one hand. Mitten and Mrs. Ray, the husband said, left the place together.

DENIES QUARREL BEFORE DEATH OF MRS. WILKINS

Attractive Mary Murphy Is Unexpected Witness in Murder Trial

Mineola, L. I., June 12.—Interest in the trial of Dr. Walter K. Wilkins was diverted from the aged defendant in the Mineola Courthouse today to the attractive figure of an unexpected witness.

She is Miss Mary Murphy of Great Neck and the Hotel Pennsylvania, tall and clad in shimmering black.

It was reported that she had quarrelled with the Wilkinses and had left their Manhattan home just before the tragedy.

Miss Murphy was indignant over the publicity. The picture hat crowning her dark hair shook as she said:

"This is a shame! I never had a quarrel with Mrs. Wilkins. I did live in the same house at West Sixty-fifth street, and when I left Mrs. Wilkins shook hands cordially. I know nothing that will help either side of the case, and that is all I have to say about it."

Dr. Wilkins glanced at her without interest. Two other women were in court, but neither of them, according to District Attorney Weeks, will be witnesses. The prosecutor merely smiled when he heard Miss Murphy protested.

Dr. Mangano, who examined Mrs. Wilkins' body after death, appeared to testify. He will describe the many wounds in her skull, any one of which would have caused death.

Nineteen talesmen were examined for the jury without any entering the box.

A new panel will be drawn. Supreme Court Justice Manning remarked that it was seemed difficult to obtain in Nassau county, as 123 had to be called to obtain ten.

WON A MILLION MAKING KINKY HAIR STRAIGHT

Mme. Walker's Will Disposes of Fortune to Her Daughter and Charities

Indianapolis, June 13.—Turning the kinky hair of negro men and women into straight locks through discoveries of late Madame C. J. Walker of New York a fortune of more than $1,000,000 it was disclosed when her will was filed for probate here. She is believed to have been the richest colored woman in the world.

The fortune grew out of a secret formula the woman claimed, by which she manufactured a hair ointment guaranteed to straighten the kinkiest hair of kinks. The preparation was tremendously popular with the men and women of her race.

Except for two trust funds of $100,000 each, one of which she requests the entire estate is left to Lelia Walker Robinson, a daughter of the late Mrs. Walker, and the other by trustees for the maintenance of orphans, the will directs that $100,000 is to be devoted to the endowment of the beautiful country place of Madame Walker at Irvington, N. Y., which is known as Villa Lewaro.

Among the bequests for charitable institutions is a fund for the establishment of a mission and industrial school for girls in Africa. Other bequests show the originator of the famous ointment to have been loyal to her friendships, dozens of her former friends and dependents being remembered with annuities. Her chief friend for the last few years, whom she had worked in her factory here and given valuable advice.

For many years, according to the daughter, Miss Walker's income had exceeded $1,000,000, and she spent a great deal of this in charities and in beautifying her town house in New York, her country home in Irvington, N. Y., and her home here. Her home in New York, it is said, cost $250,000, and she spent at least as much more in furnishing it. The Irvington estate, a forty-five acre tract, is the product of some of the best architects and landscape gardners in the country.

Lelia Walker Robinson, who inherits the business as well as the fortunes accumulated through it, becomes the richest negro woman in the world to be known.

Most of the bequests of a public nature are for institutions conducted by the negro race, Tuskegee Institute is among the beneficiaries.

TWO MEN INJURED AS CAR WRECKS WAGON

Giuseppe Paterno of No. 117 Washington street North driver of a wagon owned by Rodolfa Pistanio of No. 237 North street, and James Hoffman of No. 249 Wall street, 16 years old, of Nahant, both of whom were thrown to the street and received injuries when the wagon was struck by a Bay State Street Railway car on Washington street, Charlestown.

The men were sent to the Lafayette Hospital. Paterno had received injuries about the back and left cheek and injuries to the left arm. Hoffman received a fracture of the skull, cuts of the nose, contusions of the back and injuries to the left arm and left and right hands. The wagon was demolished.

Strike of Wiremen in Brokers' Offices Seems Certain, Says Chicago

By International News Service.

Chicago, June 13.—Coming out of [illegible] operators in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and other large cities in sympathy with the general strike of telegraphers called by officials of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies was regarded as certain today.

Strike votes have been taken on all "locals" in the Chicago district, it was said according to F. A. Davis, president of the Western Telegraph Union. It is practically assured, Davis declared today, that the union will vote to strike. F. A. Sandwina, president of the Telegraphers' Union declared today that the union was "undecided" but he could not say if it was deemed necessary to win the strike.

Reports received from officials of the brokers' men and the almost certain prospect of the strike of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers on Monday are factors considered in the view that a general strike against the telegraph companies.

Meanwhile reports sent out by officials of the Western Union and Postal companies declare that many more operators have struck and that began three days ago are returning to their keys. Thousands of messages have gone out since the beginning of the strike. Both companies claim that operations are nearly up to the normal basis.

Heads of the telegraphers' unions declare the strike is gaining headway and that more men are leaving their keys every hour. Reports of the [illegible] estimate today placed the number of men on strike at more than 30,000, which is a gain of [illegible] from his estimate of yesterday.

RECTOR KISSED NURSE, SAY CHILDREN

Practised Chiropody on Kimono Clad "Carrie Baby," Wife's Suit Brings Out

New York, June 12.—Now the Rev. Charles Norfolk Rousmaniere runs a chiropody parlor in private.

Miss Lavinia Cooper, a trained nurse, employed recently on her pastorate, figured in testimony produced before Supreme Court Justice Mr. Rousmaniere's divorce suit. The pastor's wife charges cruelty.

CALLED NURSE "BABY."

It was brought out in testimony that Miss Cooper was known to nurse Mr. Rousmaniere's children as "Carrie Baby," and "Darla," and that she called him "Dear." The pastor's wife also testified that they found him call the nurse "Carrie Baby" and "Darla," while the nurse knelt at her feet and rubbed his ankle with a chiropody [illegible]. The nurse became a permanent resident of their apartment, according to testimony.

Mrs. Norfolk, who admitted in testimony that she smoked cigarettes, declared that in 1916, 1917 and 1918, that she left him in 1915 because of his alleged conduct. She says that this conduct continued. In 1917, living together another year and that she then left him for good. She says he returned to his old habits. She sent [illegible] to him, she added, because she had no means of supporting them.

PARADED IN PAJAMAS.

Morton told the court that his father would wear pajamas in the presence of his children and [illegible] while he remained at home with the nurse.

CHINESE DEMAND THAT PARIS DECISION BE ANNULLED

will be presented on Monday, and a reply must be given within seven days, according to the Central News today. The text will be published on Tuesday.

According to International News Service advices the reply will be accompanied by an ultimatum that the Germans sign the treaty "or accept the consequences."

No discussion of the reply will be permitted.

President Wilson probably will leave for Brussels on Sunday night, returning to Paris on Wednesday. He is much gratified over General Pershing's announcement that 357,000 American troops will sail for home this month, breaking all records.

The proposal was made that they sail home from Antwerp, but this was vetoed by high naval authorities, who pointed out that there are still many floating mines in the lanes which any steamers putting out from that port would traverse.

It is now regarded as most likely that the President will sail from Brest the latter part of next week.

It is generally accepted as a fact that the Germans must agree to the treaty terms without further squabbling. It has been made plain to them that refusal would result in far more drastic terms.

The Hungarian situation was again under consideration by the Council of Four today. The situation in Hungary is entirely different from that in Russia. The Hungarian soviet government has not rushed nor murdered by the wholesale and in apparently safeguarding private property interests.

In any event the present negotiations carried on through an exchange of letters between the allies and Bela Kun, the Hungarian dictator, are intended to define absolutely whether it is possible to make peace with a region at Budapest that will represent the Hungarian people.

Copenhagen, June 13.—President Ebert of Germany and Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States, have both left for the meeting of the National Assembly at Weimar, which will pass upon the acceptance or rejection of the peace treaty, said a dispatch from Berlin today. The terms are expected to be handed to the assemblymen tomorrow.

Labor Troubles in Italy and France Disturb the Peace Conference

By International News Service.

Washington, June 13.—The growing seriousness of the labor situation in France and Italy is causing even more alarm in peace conference circles than is revealed in press dispatches from Paris, according to information reaching here today.

If violent disorders accompany the threatened general strike in France next Monday and the government is unable to put down the trouble at once, it is believed possible here that Germany may ignore the allied ultimatum and await the outcome of the labor struggle before signing the peace treaty.

The exact situation in Italy, where a general strike is being threatened in conjunction with the French movement, is not made clear in advices received here. But there is no doubt but that France now faces the most serious labor disturbances in many years, with certain radical elements attempting not only the overthrow of the Clemenceau government, but a revolution.

Considerable bodies of French troops are reported to have been assembled near Paris, Lyons and other great industrial centres where the socialists are strongest, and the government is prepared to deal harshly with any revolutionary attempts. It is pointed out at the same time that among the men threatening to go on strike are thousands of demobilized soldiers, who may make trouble in a clash with the military.

A large percentage of the French army has been demobilized, leaving only the army of occupation in Germany, the forces on duty in France to prevent internal troubles and the usual fort garrisons.

The Germans are reported to be hoping that the strike disturbances will become so serious as to cause the withdrawal of some of the French troops of occupation to cope with the situation, enabling Germany to adopt a more independent attitude in negotiating with the allies.

Diaz Leaves for Italy To Organize Defenses On Carinthian Frontier

By International News Service.

Paris, June 13.—General Diaz, the Italian commander-in-chief, has left for Italy to organize Italian defenses against the Jugo-Slavs on the Carinthian frontier.

Recent reports stated that the Jugo-Slavs had invaded Carinthia, attacking the Austrians. Later it was said that an armistice had been signed and that hostilities had ceased.

General Diaz was accompanied by Premier Orlando, head of the Italian delegation.

A secret session of the Italian Chamber of Deputies will be held on June 19 to consider the whole situation.

Before he left Paris Premier Orlando made a statement defending his refusal to negotiate with the Jugo-Slavs.

YOUTH WALKS 78 MILES TO BECOME A U. S. MARINE

Richmond, Va., June 13.—Ralph Walter Slater ambled over from his home at Mount Tell, W. Va., to Charleston, a distance of twenty-six miles, to join the Marine Corps. Having successfully passed the examination he strolled over home, another twenty-six miles, to bid his folks good-by. Completing his farewell, he made his way over the West Virginia mountains back to the recruiting office. In all, Slater walked seventy-eight miles to become a marine.

DE VALERA MAY PAY VISIT TO BOSTON

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable Dispatch.

London, June 13.—There are the strongest possible reasons for believing De Valera, President of the "Irish Republic," now missing for twelve days since he left Dublin ostensibly for England, is either on the way to the United States or already has arrived there.

From a leader of the Sinn Fein organization in London I learn that if De Valera were in London he, my informant, would know it.

He added that he had information confirming his belief that the Irish president had embarked at an Irish port, either for New York or Boston. "It is not difficult to get to America without a passport," said my informant. "Dr. MacCartan, the Sinn Fein delegate now in America, got there and recently Harry Boland, general secretary of the Sinn Fein organization in Ireland, reached the United States without a passport, and I believe he has already revealed himself and commenced propaganda work in America."

The Sinn Fein organizer continued: "Never expecting the British government to grant De Valera passports to Paris, we have been anticipating a journey by him to the United States, where his presence at this moment would give a tremendous impetus to sympathy in America for the Irish movement for freedom.

"We believe that after the Irish-American commissioners Frank P. Walsh and ex-Governor Dunne of Illinois, report conditions in Ireland as they found them, the American people need to hear confirmation from De Valera's lips."

MEXICAN REBELS WIN IN CLASH WITH FEDERALS

By International News Service.

El Paso, June 13.—Federal outposts and rebels are fighting west of Juarez, Mexico, according to couriers riding in from the scene of action early today.

East of Juarez Martin Lopez's men have occupied the Weber ranch house almost in the suburbs and have succeeded in driving away a troop of Federal cavalry sent to dislodge them.

Rebel troops under direction of General Felipe Angeles are reported on three sides of Juarez tonight, preparing to close in. A concerted attack on the Federal forces holding the city is expected momentarily.

American military authorities along the border are watching the situation closely and are continuing all necessary precautions. The garrison at Fort Riley was reinforced today by the arrival of two battalions of the twenty-fourth Infantry from Columbus, N. M.

MEDFORD VETERANS ORGANIZE TONIGHT

FRENCH PUT BAN ON ROMANOFF 'JOY' PARTIES

By ROBERT J. PREW.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, June 5 (by mail).—The Romanoffs, former reigning family of Russia, are under the darkest clouds in France. The republic has decreed that none of the old-time grand dukes of Russia, who used to lend the pre-war gayeties of Montmartre, may return to France except to live in an exterior section. Those who want to live in Paris or at Deauville or on the Riviera must first satisfy the French authorities that they intend to lead quiet lives.

Already one of their number, Grand Duke Boris, son of Grand Duke Vladimir and nephew of the ex-Czar, has been expelled from France, and, disregarding the French ban, he came to Paris with forged passports, accompanied by a woman.

Had he been content to hide himself incognito in some quiet corner of the country the complacent authorities probably would have left him in peace. But Boris could not forget that in 1912 he was the lion of the "grande saison" at Deauville and that during the ensuing Winter he was a prince of all the Montmartre fetes.

DRUNK AT MOTOR PARTY.

He became intoxicated at a poker party at a financier's house near Paris and insulted his host and hostess, as well as other guests. The next day he was given forty-eight hours to leave France. He thereupon made for Spain to enjoy the amenities of the San Sebastian season, but before he could cross the frontier King Alfonso sent word that he was "undesirable" and with his companion he was held up at the frontier station of Hendaye.

Preceded by a telegram to King Victor Emmanuel asking for the hospitality of Italian soil, the grand duke next made his way to Monte Carlo and here he received word from Rome that he could find sanctuary across the Italian border. The Grand Duke Nicholas, former commander-in-chief of the Russian army, and Grand Duke Peter are also living in Italy.

Unless the Romanoffs return in favor with the republican government, American hostesses in Paris will deplore the loss of some of their liveliest guests.

GUESTS OF AMERICANS.

Before the war broke out the grand dukes were in great demand here for all afternoon and evening functions. Prominent among their entertainers were Mrs. W. B. Leeds, Mrs. William Rhinelander Stewart, Mrs. Vanderbilt Cornelius (now Duchess of Oporto), Mrs. Percy Belmont, Mrs. William Moore, Princess Albert Hanover (formerly Dorothy Deacon of Boston), Duchess De La Rochefoucauld and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr.

Their guests included the Grand Dukes Vladimir, Boris, Cyril, Paul and Dmitri, and a prominent figure in the same colony was the Grand Duchess Anastasie of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, also Romanoff and the mother of the former Crown Princess of Germany. She had been banished from the German court by the ex-Kaiser, who thought her a flighty woman.

The grand duchess and the grand dukes quickly gained the reputation of being the biggest tango "fans" of Paris, and they were in great demand among the American society women here. Mostly they showed a marked predilection for the festivities staged by Mrs. Leeds and Mrs. Corey, especially for the latter's dances at Chateau de Villegenis, near Versailles.

'BABY DOLL' AND 'SNEAKS', WESTBORO SUSPECTS, SOUGHT IN PORTLAND

NEW TRAIL IN DEATH CHASE

Chapman, Robbers' Victim, Warned by Gypsies of Impending Harm

Westboro, June 13.—While State detectives and medical experts are busily engaged in this town on the various phases of the murder of Dwight P. Chapman, Chief of Police William Johnson, with two residents of the town, are in Portland, Me., seeking for the "Baby Doll" and "Sneaks," her husband.

The latter couple, known under those endearing names by such as came in contact with them, are supposed to be in Maine city and a vigorous search for them is being prosecuted there. Effort is being made to locate the expressman who took their trunk from the depot in Portland. As yet he has not been located, but it is thought that before nightfall he will have been discovered.

GAVE ANOTHER NAME.

It was definitely established today that the Bakers had made application to the Lyman School for Boys for employment. The name Smith was used there, and the information was given that they were residing in Westboro.

State Detective Mott is also trying to connect Baker with the attempt made by a man to secure employment at the Medfield State Hospital. At Medfield the application was made in the name of "Poole," and the statement, made over the telephone, that the applicant was residing in Westboro.

As yet the medical experts are unable to agree on the probable time Chapman was killed. Medical Examiner Knight of this town still insists that Chapman had been dead but eighteen hours when his body was discovered on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This assertion created considerable doubt, for the authorities are convinced that the last time the aged man was seen alive was on Sunday.

PERFORM NEW AUTOPSY.

The purpose of the new autopsy today, in which Medical Examiner Frederick H. Baker of Newton will co-operate, is to determine if possible whether or not death occurred more than eighteen hours prior to the discovery. If the reports of townspeople to correct, it would seem reasonable to assume that Chapman was dead well in excess of forty-eight hours prior to the hour of discovery.

"Baby Doll" and "Sneaks" left Westboro on Monday morning aboard a Boston train, and while in Boston entertained that Chapman was brutally slain some time after midnight on Sunday, and that his slayer left the hurriedly on the first morning train.

Chief Johnson has made possible robbery was coming to him. He learned this when some gypsy women called at his home. They also told him the date would be "about the 15th."

Mrs. Baker, the blonde "baby doll," and her husband, Harry, have been traced by their baggage to Portland, Me. The police would like to question them regarding what, if anything, they may know about the murder and robbery, as they were living at the Chapman home up until the day of the crime.

The story of the gypsies is told by Mrs. Mary Franklin, cook at the Central House.

SPOKE ABOUT COUPLE.

"It was about three weeks ago," she said, "and Chappie"—as Chapman was known to the people of the town—in the kitchen of the hotel. The gypsy came in and he laughed and said he was going to have his fortune told. The women told him that he had better look out for a young couple or they would do him up. They said the couple would appear about the 14th or 15th of the month and he should look out for them.

"They told him to hide his money away or he would lose it, as the couple were after it. At that time Chappie had a woman rooming at the house who told me she was about thirty or thirty-five—and that very day he made inquiries of her regarding the one. I thought she might be the one.

"I know this sounds like a crazy story and I don't believe in fortune telling or a bit of anything any gypsy said or could say, but that is exactly what they told Chappie right in the hotel kitchen not more than three weeks ago."

SAYS RUSSIANS MAY RETALIATE FOR RAID

Attaches of Mission in New York Warn of Possible Reprisals by Bolsheviki

By International News Service.

New York, June 13.—Attaches of the Russian Soviet mission to the United States gave warning today that Americans in Russia might be endangered by the action of members of the New York branch of the Union of Russian Workers who raided the mission's offices here yesterday.

The Soviet troopers were armed with a search warrant from a city magistrate and acted with supreme duress from "the New York Lusk legislative committee meeting here to investigate revolutionary movements within the State. They summoned L. A. Martens, head of the mission, and A. A. Kelloch, director of the commercial bureau, in who were examined by the committee behind closed doors.

Santari Nuerteva, secretary of the mission, today characterized the raid as an impudent affair, and emphasized the fact that the Bolshevik government, of which Martens is the "Ambassador to the United States," has not been recognized in Washington, the Bolsheviks having refused to receive Ambassador Peregrand with the greatest courtesy and protected the lives and property of Americans in Russia. He declared, and that when news of the raid reaches Russia it may be difficult to restrain the Bolsheviks from making reprisals against American citizens and their property.

METROPOLITAN WATER STRIKE THREATENED

Clinton, June 13.—Fifty employes of the Metropolitan Water and Sewage Board threatened today to go on strike unless they were granted a forty-one cent hourly wage scale. They will take up their demands with the State Commission. The employes allege that they were promised the increase last Autumn, and that the board has been guilty of bad faith. A general strike, which even union heads admit they expect, would cut off the water supply of many cities about here, and possibly interfere with a complete supply for Boston.

NEW BROCKTON "MODEL" FACTORY TO COST $150,000

Brockton, June 13.—Plans for a model factory, to cost $150,000, the only one of its kind in this part of the country, are being furthered by local business men who have formed a corporation. The building will be built along strictly sanitary lines, white enamel finish without shafting, and will be electrically operated. The south wing will be 60 by 200 feet, one story, open plumbing, and a complete vacuum cleaning system will be installed.

ALICE OREXEL'S HUSBAND IN 2 ROMANCES

Seattle Discovers Captain Barrett Was Once in Runaway Match With Coast Girl

Seattle, Wash., June 12.—The recent elopement in Sea Vork of Captain William Barrett of the United States Air service and Miss Alice Gordon Drexel—one of the Drexel millionaires—was not Captain Barrett's first matrimonial venture. News of the "surprise" wedding, which involved a secret trip to a New Rochelle preacher without the consent of the Drexel family, was received with much interest here when the identity of Captain Barrett became known today.

Seven years ago Captain Barrett, then a midshipman just out of the navy, eloped with and married Miss Kathleen Baillie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Baillie of this city. For a time the young folks resided in Portland, making occasional visits to the parents of Mrs. Barrett.

WIFE WINS DIVORCE.

Two years ago, Mrs. Barrett obtained a decree without contest from her husband, and with her five-year-old son is now residing in this city. Mr. Baillie is president and general manager of the widely known shipping firm of the United States and England.

These facts concerning the career of Captain Barrett became known today when Admiral Thomas the East said that in a personal history statement made to the War Department at the time Captain Barrett joined the United States Signal Corps in October 1917, he gave the name of William Barrett, 2d, as his nearest relative and the address "care" of Alexander Baillie, Seattle.

BORN IN OREGON.

Captain Barrett was born at Milwaukee, Ore., November 5, 1887, and was a midshipman in the United States Naval Academy from June, 1906, until June, 1910, when he passed into the United States Army as a lieutenant. He remained in the service but six months.

His father was a pioneer resident of Hillsboro, having served as a State Senator and as Mayor of the city. He died about two years ago.

Captain Barrett's mother is still living at Hillsboro. He has two brothers, one a physician and the other still in school. About the time he left the navy Captain Barrett came to Puget Sound and there met Miss Baillie, despite the objection of their parents they eloped and were married.

GEN. LOMBARD TO LEAD BIG ARLINGTON PARADE

Arrangements for Arlington's welcome home celebration in honor of the men and others of the town, who have served in the war, are practically completed. The festivities will come on Saturday, June 28, and Brigadier Walter E. Lombard, chairman of the committee, will be chief marshal of a parade of the returning heroes. Brigadier-General Lombard has consented to be marshal at the special request of Arthur Gordon Cox of the American Legion, formed this week.

Interesting exercises will be held on the field. Members of the local American Legion post will produce games. At the conclusion of this program the veterans of the late war will march to the Robbins Memorial Town Hall, where they will be guests of honor at a big entertainment and vaudeville show will also be given in the Town Hall. The celebration will close with a military ball.

IRISH COUNCIL LAUDS AMERICAN EDITORIALS

Friends of Irish Freedom, Boston Council, in the Knights of Columbus in Hibernian Building, 184 Dudley street, Roxbury, with President Joseph Smith presiding, and Vice Chairman, chairman of the organizing committee, reported that the branches were in process of formation and would soon have their delegates in the Boston council. The council has enlarged the original committee by placing two representatives on it from each branch. The editorial on the Irish question in the Boston American of Monday was strongly endorsed by the Boston Council. So were many other Boston American editorials in behalf of Irish Freedom and human rights.

EVERETT CATHOLICS TO HONOR SERVICE MEN

Everett men returned from war service will be honored Monday evening by the Catholic Club, with a banquet and entertainment in Knights of Columbus galaow. The committee consists of President Mark Linehan, Richard Mc-Ginnis, Charles O'Connor, Joseph O'Connor and George McConkie. Speakers will be Mayor Fitzgerald, Brigadier-General Lefroy Sweetser, Colonel John F. J. Herbert of Worcester, Major William Hayes and Captain James E. Cavanaugh and Lieutenant James Breslin. The toastmaster will be Walter D. Croston.

IRISH FRIENDS TO THANK BAY STATE SENATORS

Representatives of the associated branches of the Friends of Irish Freedom, at the Quincy House, voted to send Senators Lodge and Walsh a telegram of thanks for their valiant efforts in passing the Irish resolution and urging them to oppose the League of Nations and separate it from the peace treaty.

Matthew Cummings and Cornelius Cronin made a report of the meetings of the national council held in New York Wednesday night.

DEMANDS NEIGHBOR PAY $50,000 FOR LOST LOVE

Mrs. Ruby J. Ray of Somerville for whose lost affection her husband, Ernest J. Ray, has filed suit against his neighbor, Clarence E. Mitten.

A $50,000 damage suit which Ernest J. Ray of Somerville has filed against his neighbor, Clarence E. Mitten of No. 22 Lincoln street, Somerville, for alleged alienation of the affections of the plaintiff's wife, Mrs. Ruby J. Ray, recalls equity proceedings between the Rays on June 4 at which Ray said he crawled into his wife's lodging home through a cellar window and found his wife and Mitten on the premises.

The equity hearing was on a petition brought by Mrs. Ray to have her husband ordered to return to her future in her lodging house at No. 30 Lincoln street, also to account for rents.

She declared that on the preceding April 5 Ray entered the house via a cellar window and drove her out.

Ray said that he went in by the window because it was the only way he could find entrance. He added that he was accosted by his wife, who told him to disappear, as a revolver, that he disarmed her, followed her upstairs and met Mitten coming out of the bathroom with a hair brush in his hand. Mitten and Mrs. Ray, the husband said, left the place together.

DENIES QUARREL BEFORE DEATH OF MRS. WILKINS

Attractive Mary Murphy Is Unexpected Witness in Murder Trial

Mineola, L. I., June 13.—Interest in the trial of Dr. Walter K. Wilkins was diverted from the aged defendant in the Mineola Courthouse today to the attractive figure of an unexpected witness.

She is Miss Mary Murphy of Great Neck and the Hotel Pennsylvania, tall and clad in shimmering black.

It was reported that she had quarrelled with the Wilkinses and had left their Manhattan home just before the tragedy.

Miss Murphy was indignant over the publicity. The picture hat crowning her dark hair shook as she said:

"This is a shame. I never had a quarrel with Mrs. Wilkins. I did live in the same house at West Sixty-fifth street, and when I left Mrs. Wilkins shook hands cordially. I know nothing that will help either side of the case, and that is all I have to say about it."

Dr. Wilkins glanced at her without interest. Two other women were in court, but neither of them, according to District Attorney Weeks, will be witnesses. The prosecutor merely smiled when he heard Miss Murphy's protest.

Dr. Mangano, who examined Mrs. Wilkins' body after death, appeared to testify. He will describe the many wounds in her skull, any one of which would have caused death.

Nineteen talesmen were examined for the jury without any entering the box. A new panel will be drawn. Supreme Court Justice Manning remarked that jurors seemed difficult to obtain in Nassau county, as 123 had to be called to choose ten.

GIRL CLAIMS SHE CAN'T LIVE ON $15,000 A YEAR

Must Maintain Social Place, Declares Heiress; Asks $20,850 Yearly

New York, June 13.—Miss Lorena Carroll, a debutante of nineteen years, petitioned the Surrogate's court today to increase her annual allowance from $15,000 per year to $20,850. She says the increased cost of living makes it impossible for her to keep up her social position on the smaller amount.

Miss Carroll is the only daughter of the late Joseph D. Carroll, millionaire horseman. Her father willed to her the income from $150,000 until twenty-one and then the residue of his estate, amounting to $1,250,000. She resides with her mother, who is her guardian, at No. 590 West End avenue. She attends the Gorotis School at Philadelphia.

In June, 1916, Surrogate Fowler permitted her mother to spend $15,000 a year on the daughter instead of $7,500. Since that time the allowance has been increased to $15,000. This Miss Carroll now says, is inadequate. She furnished this tentative schedule of some of her daughter's expenses:

Rent, $2,000; clothing, including sport coats, evening dresses, suits coats, jewelry, furs, toilet articles, manicuring, shampooing and hair dressing, $5,000; household expenses, $4,000; insurance, $850; automobile operation $5,000; education and church, $2,000; Summer expenses, road fares, hotel bills, dinners, dances and amusement parties, $2,000; physicians, opticians, dentists, drugs and medicines, $1,000—total, $26,850.

DESTROYER HALE NOW READY FOR SEA DUTY

The destroyer Hale recently christened at the Bath Iron Works, in honor of the late Senator Hale of Maine, has arrived at the Boston Navy Yard. The ship was placed in commission by Lieutenant D. J. Howell, captain of the yard, who took the order from Secretary Daniels designating Commander J. F. Farquhar as the commanding officer. The vessel has a crew of 108 men.

WON A MILLION MAKING KINKY HAIR STRAIGHT

Mme. Walker's Will Disposes of Fortune to Her Daughter and Charities

Indianapolis June 12.—Turning the kinks hair of negro men and women into straight black hair netted the late Madame C. J. Walker of New York a fortune of more than $1,000,000 it was disclosed when her will was filed for probate here. She is believed to have been the richest colored woman in the world.

The fortune grew out of a secret formula the woman developed, by which she manufactured a hair ointment guaranteed to remove the most obstinate of kinks. The preparation was tremendously popular with the men and women of her race.

Two years ago Trust funds of $100,000 each and a few small bequests were left to Miss A'Lelia Walker Robinson, a daughter. One of the trust funds is to be used by Mme. Walker's executors for worthy charities, while the other income is to be devoted to the support of the beautiful young daughter of Madame Walker in Irvington, N. Y., which is known as Villa Lewaro.

Among the bequests for charitable purposes is a fund for the establishment of a Kinkaid and industrial school in Africa. The small private bequests show the originator of the fortune's sentiment to have been loyal in her friendships, dozens of her intimate friend and dependents being remembered with annuities. Her chauffeur is left $500, and old women who had worked in her factory here are given like amounts.

For many years according to the daughter, Mme. Walkers income had exceeded $100,000, but she spent a great deal of this in charities and in beautifying her town house in New York, her country place in Irvington, N. Y., and her home here. Her home in New York was built at a cost of $100,000, and she spent at least as much more in furnishing it. The Irvington country place is a dream of beauty, the product of famous architects and landscape gardeners in the country.

Leila Walker Robinson, who inherits the business as well as the fortune accumulated through it, becomes the president of the company to which it is believed.

Most of the bequests of a public nature are for institutions conducted by or for negroes. Tuskegee Institute is remembered generously.

TWO MEN INJURED AS CAR WRECKS WAGON

Giuseppe Palermo of No. 117 Washington street North, driver of a wagon owned by Frank Bilotsonno of No. 237 North street, and James Goldman of No. 41 Wall street, West End, who was riding with him, were both thrown to the street and received injuries when the wagon was struck by a Bay State Street Railway car on Chelsea street, Charlestown.

Palermo was taken to the Lafayette Hospital, Chelsea. Palermo received a fracture of the right collar bone and injuries to the left arm. Goldman's injuries consist of abrasions of the nose, contusion of the back and muscles of the right arm and a scalded back. The wagon was demolished.

BEATTY AND HAIG HONORED BY KING

London, June 13.—Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty, commander of the grand fleet, appeared at Buckingham Palace today for the first time since August, 1914, in company with Sir Douglas Haig, to receive investitures at the Buckingham Palace, where King George conferred upon them the Order of Merit. Later at Guildhall they received the freedom of the city and were presented with jewelled gold swords.

Forced Way to Train at Gun Point; Is Arrested

With a revolver pressed against his stomach, Alexander H. Lloyd, of No. 35 Mt. Pleasant avenue, Roxbury, a gateman at the South Station, was forced to open the gate leading to the Federal Express.

A man ambushed Lloyd just before the train gate under was opened, and before he realized what was happening had a revolver pressed against his stomach. He was commanded to open the gate and then to go to the train platform. A government inspector in the gate, heard the command, and, with a large amount of currency. The gateman opened the gate and closed it immediately so that no others could enter. He then got a station policeman and Patrolman Cummings of the La Grange street station. They arrested the man at the station. The police booked him on a charge of drunkenness and refused to tell his name.

J. L. BARRY JOINS TELEGRAPH STRIKERS

Pickets Increased and Four More Operators Induced to Quit Western Union

Increase in the number of pickets and the winning over of four additional Western Union operators to the ranks of the strikers were the local features today of the strike of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America.

Among those who joined the strikers today was John L. Barry, former secretary of the Mayor. The strikers said they were pleased to win the co-operation of Barry. He said he would help them in any way he could. The situation has changed and demanded his action, Barry declared, and appears more promising for the strikers.

The meeting at strike headquarters in Eliot street last night was attended by more than 500. Much enthusiasm was manifested.

The striking operators claim that the Postal Company forces has been crippled more than has been admitted and that sentiment is growing among the Western Union employes. These two companies control 90 per cent of the operators in Boston between them. It was estimated today that more than the seventy operators have struck to date.

Strike of Wiremen in Brokers' Offices Seems Certain, Says Chicago

By International News Service.

Chicago, June 13.—Calling out of brokers' operators in New York, Chicago, Omaha and other cities, and wiremen in sympathy with the general strike of telegraphers called against the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies was regarded as certain today.

Strike votes have been taken or will be taken within the next few hours and, according to P. A. Jones, president of the Western Union Division of the Commercial Telegraphers, no peaceful settlement of the row will vote to strike.

S. J. Konenkamp, president of the Telegraphers' Union, declared today that the broker men undoubtedly would be called out if it was deemed necessary to help the strikers.

The contemplated action of the brokers' men is the most important prospect of the strike of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' union, which has always counted on strongly by telegraphers in their fight against the telegraph companies.

Meanwhile reports sent out by officials of the Western Union and Postal companies declare that many men who went out when the strike began, July 16, have returned to work and that few additional employes have gone out since the beginning of the strike. Both companies claim to be operating very nearly on a normal basis.

Heads of the telegraphers' union claim that the strike is gaining headway and that more men are joining the movement. President Konenkamp declared that the increase in the number of men on strike at more than 20,000, which is a gain of around 5,000 from his estimate of yesterday.

COL. GARRETT GOING TO HONOLULU ON MISSION

RECTOR KISSED NURSE, SAY CHILDREN

Practised Chiropody on Kimono Clad "Carrie Baby." Wife's Suit Brings Out

New York, June 13.—How the Rev. Hannah Matrix Neffert denounced him from the pulpit, dined in private, wrote love to Miss Carrie Cooper, a nurse, and practised chiropody on her clad in a kimono, formed the basis of testimony offered before Supreme Court Justice Hagarty in the divorce suit of Mrs. Cecilia Neffert. The pastor's wife names Miss Cooper in her suit.

Mrs. Neffert, two children, housekeeper and servant, Marion, fourteen, testified to the startling accusations. The clergyman was formerly head of St. Mark's in the Bowery Mission, Brooklyn. He is at present rector of the St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church at Prospect Park. He has taken the case to this city to defend the charges.

CALLED NURSE "BABY."

It was brought out in testimony that Miss Cooper went to nurse Mr. Neffert for rheumatism. His children testified that they heard him call the nurse "Carrie Baby" and "Dearie," saw him embrace and kiss her, saw her lying in a kimono on a divan with her feet in his lap, and saw her and trimming her nails with a pair of scissors. The nurse became a permanent resident of the apartment, according to testimony.

Mrs. Neffert, who admitted in testimony that she smoked cigarettes and that they were inserted in 1900, but that she quit in 1915, because of his alleged tendency to drink, that they became reconciled in 1917, lived together another year and that she then left him aside because he refused to his old habits. She sent the children to him, she added, because she had no means of supporting them.

PARADED IN PAJAMAS.

Marion told the court that his father often sent the two children to the movies while he remained at home.

"Sometimes," he testified, "he would let Isabelle stay overnight with a friend and I would go to the movies. My father would remain home with Miss Cooper, sometimes when I returned home I found Miss Cooper sitting and talking without my knowledge. That part of Miss Cooper's bedroom door was open. I never saw her in the room. I would sometimes see the light burning brightly."

Isabelle testified.

Miss Cooper would parade round father's apartment, she said, in a kimono. She had a room there. One day when I was opposite father's room I saw Miss Cooper sitting."

COAST BASEBALL STARS MUST ALSO BE ACTORS

Los Angeles, June 13.—Every baseball player on actor doing funny stunts in the movies will be confronted with the possibility of some of them developing into baseball players, if the plans of the Vernon Club of the Pacific Coast League, of which Actual Fatty Arbuckle, film star and recent purchaser of the Vernon Club, is owner, go through. Arbuckle is working on a baseball picture and the Vernon players will be employed to play in the cast.

DANCING MASTERS DECRY INDECENCIES

Atlantic City, N. J., June 12.—The dancing masters are out to suppress "jazzing" at the convention here of the International Association of Masters. It was voted to co-operate with the Motion Picture Producers and other organizations in an attempt to control the dancing in films. It was also declared on the floor that a wave of improper dancing was rapidly sweeping the country and a menace to the best interests of the art.

DEATH RISK WAS HIGHEST IN INFANTRY

Washington, June 13.—A report of the War Department shows that fifty-five infantry officers and forty-four medical officers have been returned as battle deaths against thirty-one officers and one man for the aviation service. The figures were issued in connection of casualties, with six officers and seven men per 1,000.

BACON LEFT $200,000 EACH TO HIS 4 HEIRS

New York, June 13.—Three sons and one daughter of the late Robert Hewitt, former ambassador to France, were left trust funds of $200,000 each by the will of Mrs. Laura Bacon Hewitt, filed in the Surrogate Court here. Mrs. Hewitt, widow of Maurice De Bacon, was left the remainder of the estate, the value of which was not filed.

Automobile Lunch Boxes

Full of good things to eat: Sardines, Olivettes, Sweet Chocolate, Assorted Crackers, Potted Tongue, Boned Chicken, and many other items (enough for four, five or six "out-of-door" hungry people).

A picnic lunch by the roadside that adds greatly to every motor trip.

BOSTON AND BROOKLINE

FORBIDDEN SPEECH OF SINN FEIN LEADER SMUGGLED INTO BOSTON

AMERICAN PUBLISHES ONLY COPY IN COUNTRY

Smuggled to the United States in the heel of a man's shoe, a copy of the speech of the Rev. Michael P. O'Flanagan, vice-president of the Sinn Fein organization in Ireland, which he delivered in Ballymoneady, County Cavan, just before the general election of 1918, is now in possession of the Boston Gaelic school. By order of the British censor not one word of O'Flanagan's speech was allowed to be openly printed. This copy was secretly printed and is the only one in this country. It is here printed, as far as space permits, with a foreword by Martin J. Mulroy of the Boston Gaelic School.

By MARTIN J. MULROY.

At the beginning of the great war, Lloyd George boasted that in the entire British Empire, Ireland was the only bright spot at that time, and the English press was loud in praise of the manner in which the Irish were rushing to fight for England. Even Redmond boasted of it. President Wilson's program of his famous fourteen points, in which he claimed that all small nationalities had a right to select their own form of government, was zealously seized upon by the Irish patriots and, after the massacres in Dublin in 1916, Ireland became daily more antagonistic to English authority and the rule of might, until the general elections of last year.

LEADERS WERE JAILED.

Even then England had been misled by her friends in Ireland, who promised the election would be bought up like all the others. But the government was still on the alert, and to make matters doubly sure, all the leaders and apparent candidates with one exception were seized, under the pretense of a German plot, and transported to England where they were clapped into jail until the elections were over. The offices, headquarters and printing plants of the Sinn Fein were searched, robbed and confiscated by British soldiers who were doing duty in Ireland, far away from the battlefront where Irish and American boys were sent to murder the Germans and ward off the danger.

The Irish women organized election committees and appointed women officers to attend to the campaign, announce the candidates, notify the voters and see that every man and woman entitled to vote was counted. All the known officers of Sinn Fein and the Irish Republic except one, were either in jail or in exile, and that one was threatened with all kinds of future punishments should he take active part in the elections.

GRIFFITH WINS ELECTION.

The first great contest was scheduled for Cavan, on the borders of the Province of Ulster, long the battleground of Gael and Gaul, and now the Metz whose capture would open the way for a peaceful invasion of Ulster.

Arthur Griffith, editor and authority on political economy, was the Sinn Fein candidate. He was up against a strong, able opponent, was backed up with the guns and bayonets of the British government, as well as the remnant of the Parliamentary Party in charge of Joseph Devlin, John Dillon and Sir Edward Carson.

Father O'Flanagan was the vice-president of Sinn Fein, the one man at liberty outside of prison cells, and he was reconstituted by the women of his country in charge of the elections to lead the Irish forces for Arthur Griffith.

The British government forbade his going into Ulster. His own bishop refused him permission to leave the diocese and the Bishop of Cavan refused the permission to speak within that territory. What was he to do. He chose his county and, despite the British government and all its henchmen. He outwitted the authorities, went into Cavan and spoke at Ballyjamesduff to 10,000 Ulster men of all classes and creeds.

TAKEN AT THEIR WORD.

Father O'Flanagan was disciplined, but Griffith was elected by a grand majority and when the smoke of battle cleared the public was astonished to know that the Irish had taken Mr. Wilson and David George at their word and that five persons in every six voted for the complete independence of Ireland and absolute and complete separation from England for all time.

The British Government forbade the printing of Father O'Flanagan's speech, or its circulation, under severe penalties, but it was secretly printed and circulated and read in front battalions from the Cove of Cork to the Giant's Causeway.

A friend in Ireland sent a copy of the speech to the Boston Gaelic School, where he was once a coworker for the language movement, and the carrier of the precious document concealed it in the insole or heel of his shoe. It is free from bias, abuse or sectionalism. It is from a man who knew his people to those who loved him and swore by him, a heart-to-heart talk, a masterpiece of appeal and persuasion.

As the address has become historic and has won its way into the hearts of outstanding factions when it will be treasured after their custom for generations to come, it is here offered:

"Men of Bridhil, for many years—ever since I was a youngster at school—I longed to be present in Ireland perhaps more than any other. In coming along the sixty miles that separate North Roscommon from East Cavan today I had an opportunity of seeing that spot.

"And although I had to go a few miles out of my way, and even run the risk of being a little late for the meeting, I felt that I would not be in a proper position to speak to the men of Cavan if I did not stand for a few minutes on the bridge of Finea, on the spot where the Blasher and Dublin Road meet, and look on the grand of the foreign enemy at bay and where in the evening after his long day's fight, when a gigantic Irish soldier opposed to him drove his hobnail into his chest, he gripped his hands between the teeth as if between a vise and held it there until he had finished the enemy.

"And I said to myself as I stood on that bridge: You are going to speak to the men in whose veins runs the blood of Myles O'Reilly and his band of 100, and if you are not able to get these men to stand in the bridge for Ireland today, as their forefathers did in the past, the fault will be yours and not theirs."

"POISON" SENT BROADCAST.

"Within the last few days England has started one of the many campaigns against Ireland, and the first action in the campaign is the effort to fill the whole world with a cloud of poison-gas of lies and misrepresentations. I do not propose to waste your time and mine by trying to examine the network which the little Welsh spider spun in his effort to weave around Ireland the flimsy lies which he found the world with.

NOT A HARD PROBLEM.

"The Irish question is not a question that requires much study or much thought to solve. It is quite a simple thing to solve. You don't need to gather together a carefully selected body of men and women and shut them marking time in Trinity College for eight or nine months in order to find out the essentials of the Irish question.

"The solution is quite simple. All they have got to do is to take back their French and their Shortt and their soldiers and their police and their judges and all their paraphernalia of the last one and get beg and hang out of Ireland and leave Ireland to the people for whom Almighty God made it, and whom in His Providence He caused to be born and grow up to manhood and womanhood in it.

"The last act in the drama of reducing Ireland to slavery was proclaimed a couple of weeks ago and they were in the hurry of their lives in passing it through and putting it on the statute book.

"It seems to me from our experience in Ireland of here Home Rule for four years ago, and then the Conscription Act of some four or five months ago, that if you want to get rid of a nuisance the best way to treat it is to put it on the Statute Book.

"They rushed it pell-mell through the House of Commons and they sat up nights in the House of Lords, and they had the Commissioners of King George waiting in their robes until the House of Lords had passed it through in order to put the king's signature upon it, and one would imagine that it was going to be the last course the next day. All the time they were wondering whether they would be met by passive resistance or by active resistance.

PREPARED TO MEET IT.

"Well, my friends, we are quite prepared to meet it with passive resistance, as long as it remains passive conscription. (Cheers).

"There was a man one day working in a field of hay and a cross dog came along and attacked him. He stuck a fork in the hay and killed the dog. He was brought up in court for it. The magistrate began to lecture him about killing a valuable dog and the man said to him, Sure, the dog attacked me!

"Ah, well! said the magistrate, 'Could you not protect yourself with the other end of the fork?'

"Sure I would,' said the man, 'if the dog attacked me with his other end!' (laughter and cheers).

"Well, the conscription dog has been quite content so far to attack us with the other end and thus as long as we have passive conscription I dare say we can be quite content with passive resistance, but if the dog comes along as he threatened to come along at first, he will find that there are two ends to the fork. (cheers).

"Well, we are met today in a movement that will fill a large place in the history of Ireland and will, I believe, fill a large place in the history of Europe. What have we to do with the great tragedy that is bringing civilization into ruin on the continent of Europe? Go around amongst those conscripts soldiers from England and talk to them and find out why they are in khaki and each one of them will tell you a very pitiful story—that they were either shamed into it or pressed into it by force and that they don't want to be there.

MANUFACTURED HATRED.

"All this hatred that is supposed to fill the breasts of the English and French against the Germans and of the Germans against the English and French is largely a manufactured hatred, a hatred that is built up by lying newspapers and lying ministers, who sit in their offices in London and other capitals in Europe and play with the lives of men by the millions. These men are in no danger themselves, but they coolly talk of an offensive and they know perfectly well probably cost 150,000 or 200,000 lives.

"With the stroke of a pencil or with some wild speech or some wild sentence about a knockout blow, they blot out the lives of hundreds of thousands of fathers and children and leave weeping and broken hearts throughout the length and breadth of Europe.

"My friends, thank God there is one nation in Europe that has got leaders who are not sitting safely at home, but who are enduring as much danger as the rank and file of their followers. Eamon De Valera and Arthur Griffith are not sitting safely in some office promoting by the lives of millions and gaining on the other people's lives, but they are risking their own.

"Eamon De Valera two years ago was saved—oh, I believe it was a miracle of God—to be the hope of the Irish race. We, therefore, have leaders who sympathize with the people, men who will not ask them to do any man unless it be absolutely necessary in the cause of Irish liberty.

"We have men who have not translated the world into terms of machine guns, poison gas and high explosives but who will still believe that the world was made for those living in it.

NO FAR FOR LIES.

"Therefore we have one nation in Europe that does not believe the lies that have fed out to us. We have got one nation in Europe that has refused to go to war with a pair of blinkers on. Yes, they appeal to us to fight for nationality, and they appeal to us for liberty, but our lot and our brothers across the Atlantic and they will not allow a little boy or girl on the Atlantic to write a letter to their mother that they will not eggs—not get a bit of what the boys across the Atlantic is.

"Yes, they want us to join in a cause because they tell us that the people beyond the Atlantic are heart and soul in it, and even when Lord Mayor of our premier town tries to go out to America to lay a written statement before the President of the United States they will not let him go, unless his statement is submitted to this new Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Lord French.

"Lord French to be the censor of Ireland's voice to the United States! Lord French, Lord Lieutenant and all that he is could not get himself elected a member of the Roscommon county council in the district around his residence in Carrigenolan.

"Well, if they want us to find out and know for certain what this war is about let them give us free scope to go over and discuss the question with our people in America. Let us hear what they have to say and let them hear what we have to say. Ah! they won't do that.

TURNED AGAINST PEOPLE.

"I saw a letter a few days ago from a young fellow of twenty-three, born here in Ireland, who went out to Canada a few years ago and got very fond of Canada, seeing that it was a fine, big, free country—or rather, fairly free. Anyway it looked very free to him coming from Ireland. When his chums were joining the army he joined too, and he was brought over as far as England on his way to the front.

"All the time he was encouraged by the hope that he would have an opportunity of going home to see his father and mother in Ireland; but when it came as far as England he was told by an officer of his regiment that these awful Sinn Feiners had got such a high old game of Ireland that it would not be safe for him to come over here (laughter).

"And the sad part of it was that this poor unfortunate fellow believed the lies he was told and was full of bitterness against so many of his own countrymen.

"Ah, yes, they can drown our voices. They can prevent De Valera from coming here to speak to the people of Cavan, for some time longer, anyway. They can stifle the voice of Arthur Griffith and compel some other men in Ireland to write articles of 'loyalty.' But men of Cavan, they won't be able to stifle the voice of the voters of Cavan.

FREEDOM'S FLASHLIGHT.

"That will be one flashlight that will shine up in the sky over Ireland and will be seen by the Irish in America and Australia, and in every part of the world. It will be seen not merely by the Irish, but by the friends of freedom wherever on God's land a real friend of freedom is left, told that we would bring turmoil and bloodshed on the country.

"We were told that conscription would be put in force immediately; that we would vex John Bull, and that if we vexed John Bull that he was an awful fellow and what would he not do with us!

"Ave, and we were told by those members of Parliament who are coming down here feeding you up with lies—no, thank God, those who are listening to me, but unfortunately there are others. Really I don't blame the poor people themselves, because I believe if they knew what was right they would do it—they told us in Honor God and say that they are prepared, if necessary, to shed the last drop of their blood upon the Irish soil rather than accept away to be the bond slaves of imperial plotters.

"They talk of plots, but they are the plotters! Ireland is a nation! They are criminals to come to Ireland at all! Their Lord Lieutenant and their chief secretary are criminals against humanity by daring to come in and spy by force to run a country against the will of the people who are governed.

"And we can confirm them as criminals out of the mouths of those hypocritical leaders of England who protest that they are fighting a war for self-determination.

"As a nation, then, and only as a nation, are we right in resisting conscription and as a nation we cannot have any bartering and bosses, with any forces in power. We must turn our backs upon Westminster and preach out our rights before the whole world. And, believe me, Ireland is today not merely solving the Irish question but Ireland is a leader in the solution of a world question.

"Ireland is a leader in solving the world question because the Irish people are refusing to yield to force, refusing to go and fight battles until they have examined freely and fully both sides, and now and then giving their decision as to which is right and which is wrong.

TO SEND DEVENS OFFICERS TO BORDER

Twenty-five Lieutenants Expect Orders—36th Infantry May Go to Texas

Camp Devens, Ayer, June 13.—From an authoritative source in this cantonment today it was learned that twenty-five first and second lieutenants will shortly leave for the Mexican border for active service.

The order for the transfer of the officers is expected any moment and there is considerable anxiety on the part of the large number of men available, most of whom are pulling all kinds of wires to be among the lucky ones to go. It is known that preference will be given in some cases to lieutenants who assisted in the demobilization of the 12th and 26th Divisions, and who did not get a chance to see service in France.

SAY SITUATION IS ACUTE.

Army officers here declare that the situation in Mexico is becoming acute and point to the fact that plans have been made by the government for the transfer to points along the border of an army division now on its way to this country from France. They also hint that the 36th Infantry quartered here will probably receive an order from Washington to move to a camp in Texas.

Frederick T. Doyle of Roxbury, who is interested in the formation of a legion of world war veterans in that district, has invited a number of overseas men from New England quartered here to attend a meeting to be held tonight in the Municipal Building, Vine and Dudley streets, Roxbury.

A large delegation of enlisted men from this camp will attend the exercises at the State House tomorrow when the presentation of the colors of the various Massachusetts military organizations that served in the world war will be made.

Reservations have been made in the old Depot Brigade section for 2,211 men of the 76th Division due here tomorrow. These men were drilled at this camp and comprise the 301st Engineers, 301st Sanitary Train and several casual companies.

First Lieutenant Clarence A. Trendall, infantry, was today appointed acting camp provost marshal. He has been detailed to the military police more than a year.

MUST BE IDENTIFIED.

By command of Major-General McCain, sales will be made to the families of officers and enlisted men, only on presentation of proper identification at the cash sales department, Quartermaster Corps. In the case of officers the identification must be a written authorization from the officer stating relationship of the purchaser and giving the rank and organization of the officer signing. In the case of enlisted men identification must contain the same information and bear the approval of the soldier's commanding officer.

An order touching on this matter calls attention to the privileges of the bank holding the officer accepting checks in payment for goods personals responsible and declares that in no case will other than a certified check, postal or express money order or cash be accepted in payment of account.

A typewriter, a large number of shirts, carpenter tools and boxing gloves were stolen from the reclamation house entry to which was gained, it is said, by smashing down a door.

Captain E. A. Edwards has charge of the sale of the tents used by the 26th Division in the sanitary process section. The sale of the tents started Tuesday and finished at 4 p. m. today. Corporal Frank Loveland, Quartermaster Corps, was the auctioneer. Tents which sell for $75 went under the hammer for $12.50. Officers and enlisted men were allowed to buy. Gas masks were also being auctioned for $1 and upwards.

Private Michael E. Hennessey, Company A, 504th Engineers, whose home is at No. 46 Gardner street, West Roxbury, was among the New England men to arrive here. He is a son of M. E. Hennessey, a Boston newspaper man. He was in France nearly two years.

MADE BUILDING RECORDS.

"For a time I was on detached service," said Private Hennessey. "I ran an auto at least 300 miles a day, and was close to the front line trenches most of the time. I was later mustered at a place called Is-Sur-Tille, where we put up the largest bakery in the world, turning out 2,000,000 pounds of bread daily.

"We also laid 500 miles of track, put up 150 warehouses, and maintained Base Supply No. 1 for the men at the front. We also had charge of the transportation facilities and made a record of putting a whole division through the sanitary progress machine in twenty-four hours. We put up the largest theatre in the world at Camp Doughboy."

Investigation is being made of the affairs of a camp officer who it is stated lost a pay check involving several hundred dollars. An arrest is likely to be made shortly in connection with the case, it is stated. The officer's name is withheld.

Forged U. S. Treasury Orders Cashed by Escaped Prisoner

New York, June 13.—Ralph Vaserberg, an army lieutenant, who was sentenced to serve ten years in Fort Leavenworth prison for overstaying his leave, used the presses of his prison printing shop to forge blank treasury warrants, and then escaped in a major's uniform and cashed these forgeries throughout the country, Secret Service men told United States Commissioner Hitchcock when Vaserberg was arraigned before him.

The prisoner's home is in a suburb of Pittsburgh. He was held for a hearing next week on a charge of forging and passing government securities.

SENTENCE CAMP DEVENS SOLDIER FOR ASSAULT

Lawrence, June 13.—James H. Harkey, a soldier from Camp Devens, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Mahoney for assaulting a man with a large pocket knife, nearly severing the victim's jugular vein. The sentence was suspended to allow the authorities at Camp Devens to take the matter up. The court was informed that the officials at Camp Devens wanted to have the case tried there, but Judge Mahoney stated that the sentence imposed by him will be carried out.

SAYS CHURCHES SHOULD WORK FOR JUSTICE

Past Failures Are Cause of Labor's Lack of Faith, Declares Dr. McAlpine

New York, June 13.—Admitting that labor's lack of trust in the church as a proponent of social justice is undoubtedly justified, the Rev. Charles A. McAlpine, of the National Committee of Northern Baptist laymen, declared the time had arrived for action to show the church by deeds rather than to create just what contribution will be made to relieve leaders in the new world order. Dr. McAlpine believes that the church should act as sort of an interpreter between capital and labor, pointing out to both factions in an impartial manner the virtues of the demands made by each.

"The Baptists of America are going to take a decisive part in social reconstruction work during the post-war period," announced Dr. McAlpine. "Our denomination is going to lead in part of world responsibility. The time has arrived when the church should stand for something vital in the minds of every man, woman and child. It must be something more than a place to spend Sunday evening when some men who have to spend money take the opportunity to hear five dollars worth of music for five cents.

CHURCHES MORE SERIOUS.

"There are many indications that the fires of the great war have left the churches vastly more serious in their attitude toward world problems than ever before. It is as though the very conscience of the nation had undergone a cleansing process, with the result that the vital and fundamental principles are earnestly asking what their duties are in face of the new social conditions that are being rapidly crystallizing in these days of reconstruction.

"The relation of the church to industry and to labor and to international problems has been changed times innumerable within the past decade, but a strong enabling sense of reconstruction has resulted. The impression has gone abroad that the church is not sympathetic with the labor movement and is not in touch with the spirit of the times which aggravated have in often led to industrial unrest and strikes and the long train of misunderstanding, recrimination and suspicion and to show the world our distrust."

DUTY TO SECURE JUSTICE.

"Manifestly it is not the function of the church to establish model industrial conditions, to inaugurate movements in organization or to serve as the mouthpiece either of commercialism or of socialism. But it is the function of the Christian church, in part at least, to create in state the overwhelming conscience of social justice, right and truth, with such precision and clarity, and with such manifest fairness to all, that employer and employee, conservative and radical, can and will unite in the effort to recognize the essential fundamentals of social justice and to adjust themselves to them and will gladly lend to that church personal encouragement and support.

"The truth is that labor as expressed in modern organized forms has lost much dependence or confidence in the church as a proponent of social justice. This popular distrust of the church is unkindly, unjustified, unfair in very large measure by the past failure of the church to voice those just demands of labor which ingrandized have so often led to industrial unrest and strikes and the long train of misunderstanding, recrimination and suspicion and to show the world our distrust."

Police Aid Asked in Search for Wild Chickens

Two wild chickens are possibly at large in the Back Bay. They belong to George E. Wells of No. 20 Bromfield street, who sent out a search for them in his automobile.

And after getting within three blocks of the home of the fowl long enough to notice a store and disappearing for supper.

"Chickens," chirped Patrolman Sergeant Sewall when none of the police detectives along with a swarm of bees, but Sergt. Lapez, who hails from Arizona, wasn't so long ago that a batch of green paint stained trap were spoken very dearly by the same thief.

However, the automobile is safe.

BERRIES FAIRLY PLENTIFUL IN MARKET

Prices Still Rule High for These as Well as Fruit and Garden Truck

Berries are fairly plentiful in the Boston markets, though prices still rule high.

Teas for two acres three varieties have been planted. These are resplendent acting at 50 cents for a quart in the Boston markets, but in some Carolina at 75 to 90 cents for a quart basket, and somewhere in between by the roadside.

Strawberries are coming in very quantity and at lower prices. Some good berries are obtainable at 35 and 40 cents a quart.

Georgia peaches in baskets containing 18 to 24 were $1. Watermelons average $1.25 each. California cantaloupe are 20 and 25 cents apiece. Florida pineapple are 35 to 50 cents and Puerto Rican varieties $1. Good oranges are 75 to 85 cents a dozen, yellow bananas 60 to 90 cents a dozen and red bananas 75 cents a dozen. Limes were 25 cents a dozen and lemons 40 cents.

Green peas show quite a shortage of recent days. Those from Virginia and vicinity are 20 and 25 cents a quart. Spinach is 10 to 25 cents a peck, beet greens 25 cents a peck, green cabbage 10 cents a head, red cabbage 25 cents a head, cauliflower 25 cents a pound.

Southern tomatoes 25 and 30 cents a pound, okra, new, 40 cents a pound, cukes 10 cents each, cucumbers 15 cents each, new beets 10 cents a bunch, turnips 15 cents, carrots 10 cents a bunch, eggplant 25 and 40 cents each, new cabbage 10 cents a pound.

Florida potatoes are ringing $1.25 a peck, Bermuda potatoes $1.50 and old potatoes go to 50 cents a peck.

BIG FISH WAREHOUSE URGED BY FITZGERALD

Washington, June 12.—A resolution introduced in the Congressman Fitzgerald proposes the construction of a $2,000,000 fish warehouse by the government in the city of Boston.

"If this bill is passed," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "it will be one of the best things that has ever happened to Boston in the matter of food control. Hundreds of tons of fish are used when the market has been glutted with fish it has been taken off by the fish interests and put into warehouse resulting in keeping the prices abnormally high. If we have a big cold storage warehouse this will be prevented."

Women Say Petrole Wonderful for Hair

Brings Out Natural Color Leaves Hair Soft, Fluffy

The advantage of Noonan's Hair Petrole is that this preparation contains a very valuable antiseptic which has a wonderful action on the scalp and the lifeless hair. This antiseptic cannot be bought in this country, in fact could not be secured after the declaration of war, but the manufacturers had plenty on hand and are supplying the demand.

This antiseptic action combined with the stimulating properties leaves the scalp in a healthy condition and the natural beauty of the hair is intensified, the lifeless hair takes on new vigor and becomes delightfully soft and fluffy.

All ladies' hair dressers apply Noonan's Hair Petrole. Barbers apply this preparation for men at fifteen cents an application, or it may be purchased from barbers, hair dressers, druggists or department stores for home use. Price $1.00 bottle, or from T. Noonan & Sons, 38 Portland St., Boston. Tell your druggist he can get it for you from his wholesaler.

Uses Dummy to Escape

Geneva, N. Y., June 12.—A cleverly made dummy of himself, with face fashioned out of dough and soap, and said to be a striking resemblance, enabled John McAllister, a New York burglar, to fool his guards and escape from Ring prison.

FLAG USED IN WAR GIFT TO STATE SENATE

The national flag which was presented to the 211th Field Signal Battalion on April 26, 1918, and which was carried by that organization during its active service in France, has been restored to the Senate, and will occupy a conspicuous place in the chamber of that body in the State House.

An order was adopted requesting the sergeant-at-arms to prepare a suitable depository in the Senate chamber in which to keep the flag.

SENATE VOTES AGAIN FOR PAY RAISE

Follows Lead of House in Overruling Veto of Governor Coolidge

Following the lead of the House, the Senate passed over the veto of Governor Coolidge the bill increasing the salaries of members of the Legislature from $1,000 to $1,500, to take effect at this session. The vote was 25 to 14, the necessary two-thirds.

Unless the State auditor or treasurer holds up the increase it will take effect in September, ninety days after passage of the act.

Senator Hardy of Fitchburg, took the Governor to task for vetoing the salary increase without offering any constructive suggestions.

"Instead of offering some suggestions as to the solution of this matter he has practically established the salary of $1,000 as a permanent one, notwithstanding that the cost of living has advanced for members of the General Court as it has for everybody else.

"If His Excellency had returned this bill with the recommendation that it should take effect in 1920, or if he had reduced the amount to $1,250 I would cheerfully support his recommendation. But I cannot support the veto, feeling that the present salary is inadequate to allow a member of the Legislature to serve and live in accordance with the dignity of the position."

SEEKS TO CLASS ALL LIQUORS AS INTOXICATING

Methodist Church Calls for a Drastic Change in the Prohibition Law

By Universal Service.

Washington, June 12.—The most drastic enforcement of prohibition yet suggested was urged upon the House Judiciary Committee by leaders of the dry forces.

They recommended that the term "intoxicating," as stated in the prohibition law, should be defined so as to include all alcoholic liquors.

Another drastic proposal was that American citizens residing abroad should be denied the protection of the United States flag when they set up a business that has been outlawed in this country.

These views were submitted by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, representing the board of temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the form of a memorial to the committee from seven national temperance organizations.

The memorial further asked that the enforcement of prohibition be placed under the Department of Justice.

'Woman's' Wild Cry for Help Was--- Sea Lion

Los Angeles, Cal., June 13.—It was a wild night off Point Firmin.

A gale was blowing and the edges of the huge combers which were rushing into the rocks were being torn to shreds by the wind and driven in fine spray against the cobbled cliffs.

Across the gale died down a woman apparently battling for her life in the seething mass through the air.

Another woman in a cozy cottage on the cliffs above heard it, but it is a hard call to the police station. Police stations receive scores of calls from women who hear cries and life tragedies in the surge of the ocean.

So to the spot they hastened and on the cliffs at the edge of the raging sea. Again a cry—more cries rang out.

Then came a hurry call to the police station.

"Send me ——," said one policeman, while the others laughed.

They bundled up their lifesaving apparatus and went back to the station, but avoided reporters.

CHARGES PLOT TO KEEP MEAT PRICES UP

Thousands of Tons Stored, Says Representative Fess; War Department Accused

By Universal Service.

Washington, June 12.—While prices are being maintained at higher levels than ever before, the packing interests of the country are holding in cold storage 1,238,000,000 pounds of meat and meat products and 46,000,000 pounds of chicken.

This charge was made on the floor of the House by Representative S. D. Fess, Republican, of Ohio. He said the figures were furnished him by the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Fess declared these figures revealed a "startling" condition, additional.

"My observation is that meat and food are higher than ever before. There ought to be some way to get at this situation. If the departments of the government do not take action this Congress ought to enact progressive legislation to remedy the condition."

Mr. Fess declared the figures he presented showed that 246 per cent more broilers are held in cold storage during peace time than when the country was engaged in war.

Representative Dowell of Iowa, Republican, charged that it appeared the War Department was planning to turn back its surplus supplies in bulk to the monopolistic interests from which they were originally obtained and which have controlled production and prices for years.

"The War Department is merely passing the packers by to permit them a surplus meat from going on the market and getting in the proper hands of the consumer."

Holiday blouses, sweaters and smocks

These for WOMEN — Filene's — These for MISSES

To the women's and misses' blouse shops the 17th of June means weeks of preparation to get together the prettiest blouses and have them all ready at prices so low we can say of them with pride—"Filene values."

These holiday blouses are of two types—smocks, worn outside the skirt; and blouses, worn inside. Some—a very few—are sketched. Note the buttoned-front smock for women, and don't fail to see the short sleeve, becoming more and more important. Those who launch it now will have the satisfaction of being not only first, but also the most comfortable.

This pretty blouse is batiste, $3.

Short sleeves, oh my, oh my! Georgette, $8.75.

At last a smock that doesn't have to be pulled on over the head, $3.

Batiste, with color edged frills, $2.50.

Closely knit Shetland wool, many colors, $4.

White voile, colored dots in the formation of the collar, $2.

Smocks with the sleeve cuffs behind, $3.50.

Hand crocheted edges on these tailored frill blouses, $3.

A new version of the tucked bosom shirt, $3.

Crepe de Chine, pale pink or white contrasted with navy blue ribbons, $8.75.

Filene values are due partly to long years of specialization (one big shop sells only women's waists, another only misses') and partly to the Filene policy of separating the cost of merchandise from the cost of service.

Women's* tailored frill batiste blouses, $3

"SUNSHINE NURSE" FEARED GAY HOUSE WAS HAUNTED, SAY POLICE

CHIEF TELLS OF SEARCH FOR "SPOOKS" AT ANDOVER

was carefully investigated by him, Chief Smith said, but he could find no trace of spiritual visitors. He did find some books misplaced and in the attic some trunks the hinges of which had been pried off.

Chief Smith said that as the result of the search he was in the city today to get the loan of an expert in locks. Mrs. Steele, who found him in search of a tall man and a short one about the house, and of hearing noises in the night.

TRUNK HINGES REMOVED.

Mrs. Steele told him that the day before there had been carpenters at work in the house. The chief said that he made a thorough examination but that he did not find anything unusual.

The second visit was made just after Christmas. And this visit was also made at the solicitation of Mrs. Steele. The chief said that he found that those articles mentioned had been removed, so far as someone going around the outside of the house into the dining room and the kitchen was left open, and in the evidence of the presence of the so-called "spooks" and burglars was the disarrangement of a number of articles.

Chief Smith did not visit the attic to look at the room on the first visit, but on the second visit he went through her trunks.

"The hinges on the trunks had been pried off," he said. "There was nothing in any of those trunks. Nothing was said of any spiritual visitors by Mrs. Steele or Mrs. Lee. I don't think Mrs. Steele ever said anything about spiritual visitors. She told me that Mrs. Lee was looking for some old jewelry that she said she would like to have in her collection."

During the testimony of Chief Smith, a number of reporters, who were strangers and more animated than on any previous occasion, got up in the jury room and held whispered conferences with the attorneys.

Miss Lee, pale and nervous, although she carried another big bouquet of flowers, she played with them but little, giving all her attention to the attorney.

After the call in December Chief Smith said that he received three offers to watch the house.

Chief Smith said Mrs. Steele told him that the burglars were looking for something and Miss Lee told him they would never find it. During the conversation Mrs. Lee entered the room. The following night Chief Smith said that he visited the Emerson house, in company with a State officer, Griffin, and they searched Mrs. Steele's apartment. Cross-examination by Attorney Dasher followed.

Q.—You heard Mrs. Steele say that those articles were given to her by Miss Gay? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—And she pointed out the articles one by one, didn't she? A.—She did.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Lunce write any notes and put them on the articles. A.—I don't think I saw Mrs. Lunce write anything at all.

Q.—You took out much more than there is here. You took almost everything there was in the room, didn't you? A.—We took all the things marked with the Gay laundry mark. Some there was no evidence of everything identified by Mrs. Lunce as coming from the Gay house.

CALL BY "FEMALE VOICE."

Q.—And did you say to Mrs. Steele "Come down to the station in the morning and you and Mrs. Lunce can fight it out"? A.—Something very like that.

Q.—Were you the complainant in this case? A.—I was the complainant on the warrant on the request of Miss Lunce and Officer Griffin.

Q.—And there was no talk of any later developments? A.—None at all.

Chief Smith insisted that he visited the Gay house on the night of the alleged burglaries in response to a call from "a female voice." He did not know whose voice it was, but was positive it was not the voice of Mrs. Lunce or Mrs. Steele.

An animated tilt between attorneys resulted from the question made by Attorney-General Attwill of Mr. Daley, who claimed that the witness had testified that "Miss Gay had said the burglars were looking for something that they never found."

Mrs. Laughton argued vigorously with her attorney during the cross-examination, as the court ordered the stenographer's record was read. Chief Smith said that it was Mrs. Lunce with whom he had the conversation and that time said "Gay."

HUNT FOR PAPERS.

Witness said that Miss Gay had gone out of the room. He did not recall that in 1917 it was said to him that the people in the house had no fear because the parties were looking for papers "that they would never find."

The trunks looked as if somebody had been looking for something, he said.

Q.—Who did you put police officers on guard at the Gay house? A.—Because Mrs. Steele was afraid. She was alone in the house with a sick woman and wanted the house.

Q.—And you never had any conversation with Mrs. Gay? A.—No, I did not. She was out when I got there. She came in later.

Q.—And you didn't have any conversation with her about the papers were—yes or no? A.—I did not.

Witness said that he went up in the attic with Mrs. Steele, and that he did not think it important to see Miss Gay as neither the attack nor breaking.

Q.—You didn't think that important? A.—Not at that time.

Q.—Do you want to change your testimony now and say it was Miss Gay instead of Mrs. Steele who called you? A.—I told you I did not say.

Q.—Is that your usual method of conducting a case? A.—No. It is not. But the officer had called there before and found nothing.

"Large Woman in Black" Figures in Skeels Trial Testimony

"When I went there Mrs. Skeels told me that there was a great deal of noise upstairs like people pushing beds around and walking around. She also told me that they had company and when they went a large woman in black appeared. She said she asked Miss Gay who she was and Miss Gay said she didn't know, but such people had appeared before."—Testimony of Michael T. Welsh, a workman at the home of Miss Gay.

windows in the annex cellar, all but one being over the coal bin. I didn't bother with that.

Webster said that he didn't remember talking any conversation with Mrs. Skeels.

Attorney Daley objected to the question put by the Attorney General as to the previous testimony of the witness before the Grand Jury, and Judge Thayer ordered the jury to withdraw during the argument.

Attorney Daley based his objection on the ground that the question had been preceded by one asking if the defendant's memory had been examined. Authorities were quoted on both sides.

Following the recess, Judge Thayer ruled and the Attorney-General was allowed to question.

SAW TWO MEN AT DESK.

Q.—Do you recall any conversation with Mrs. Skeels? A.—I do. She told of making up in the night and seeing two men at the desk, I think it was a rolltop desk, in a room opposite hers.

Q.—Do you recall any conversation about carpenters? A.—She said something about a board that came sliding down the stairs. I think it was the attic stairs.

Cross-examined by Attorney Daley, the witness said that he was not present at the Gay house, who came in as he went out.

William M. Frye, the third officer on guard, said that in consequence of a telephone call received at the police station in July, he went to the house. He saw Mrs. Skeels, Mr. Lundgren and Mrs. Gay.

BOOKCASE TOPPLES OVER.

"Mrs. Skeels and Mr. Lundgren had just come in," he testified. "They had been out walking and they said they saw a man come out from under the front entrance. I didn't see anyone. Miss Gay told me she had noises in the attic. I had no conversation with them inside. I was on the outside all the time."

Leonard Sanders was another Andover officer who guarded the Gay house. He inspected the house with Mr. Lundgren and saw the pound trunks in the attic had been broken into.

"They looked as if they had been smashed with a hatchet," he said. Mrs. Skeels told him of a bookcase that fell downstairs and of a board that fell down the attic stairs, he said. In the four cellars he was there nothing unusual happened, he said.

Michael T. Welsh, mason, testified that he went to work in the Gay house December 26 and was there three days.

"When I went there Mrs. Skeels told me that there was a great deal of noise upstairs like people pushing beds around and walking around. She also told me that they had company, and, when they went, a large woman in black appeared. She said she asked Miss Gay, who she was and Miss Gay said she didn't know, but such people had appeared before."

Continuing, he said:

"As the result of my conversation I ate dinner in a hurry and went bravely up into the attic looking for the ghost." Witness said that he and Mrs. Skeels looked into all the trunks and into a scuttle-hole for the ghost. There was nothing in sight but a little baby carriage.

The story of the board falling down the attic stairs and of two men being upstairs in the night was repeated by the witness.

"Mrs. Skeels said they were after something and they would never get it."

Q.—Did you ever tell anyone of these incidents; anyone across the street? A.—I told Judge Mahoney.

UNDERTAKER TESTIFIES.

Edward L. Bennett, undertaker, of Lawrence, said that he took charge of the body of Florence W. Gay. He said that he did not know Mrs. Skeels until she called him up and told him to call at the house; that Miss Gay had passed away.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with Mrs. Skeels? A.—She asked me if I knew Miss Gay. I did not. She thought it was very strange that she had asked to have me called.

Q.—Did you embalm the body? A.—I did.

Mr. Bennett said that it was under his direction that the body was first exhumed on June 6, 1918; that it was taken to his undertaking rooms and later returned to the cemetery. He caused it to be taken up again and sent to the North Grove street morgue, Boston, and again, yesterday, had it taken to his rooms, when the third autopsy was performed.

Henry A. Ransom of Whitman said he had charge of mixing the embalming fluid.

Q.—Is there any arsenic used in it? A.—No, sir.

PURCHASED GAY HOMESTEAD.

Burton S. Flagg of Andover, trustee and treasurer of Abbott Academy, testified to the purchase of the Gay homestead in June, 1916, for Abbott Academy. He knew Mrs. Skeele and Miss Gay, and became administrator of the estate of Florence W. Gay on January 17, 1918. He said he had filed his first, second and final accounts.

Q.—At whose request did you become administrator? A.—At the request of Charles N. Gay.

Q.—Did you receive anything from time to time from Mr. Gay? A.—I received twenty-three shares of New England Telephone & Telegraph Company's stock, twenty shares of Western Union and twenty shares of Boston & Albany.

Q.—Did you receive any jewelry from Charles Gay. A.—I received some in a registered package from his attorney, Healey, of Lynn.

Witness enumerated many articles of jewelry, including a cameo pin, five rings, one set with diamonds; another set with two diamonds, others with pearls, amethysts and pearls.

Q.—Who now has these rings? A.—They were sent to Mrs. Luce. I have her receipt for them.

Liner Carried More People Than There Are in Natick

New York, June 14.—Delayed through standing by the damaged transport Graf Waldersee, the giant liner Leviathan is in dock here with a total list of 14,389 persons, 11,493 of whom are soldiers. This number is said to be the largest ever carried on a trans-Atlantic voyage by any one ship and included three full regiments of infantry.

In addition, the Leviathan broke her own record of crossing from Sandy Hook to Brest and return by six hours, making the round trip in fifteen days, eleven hours and thirty-four minutes.

On the record-breaking passenger list were Brigadier-General William H. Dashiell, commander of the 11th Infantry Brigade, and six officers and twenty-three men of his brigade headquarters. The 51st, 52d and 53d Infantry regiments aboard complete. Civilian passengers and crew made up the remainder of the grand total.

EIGHT-WORD WILL DISPOSES OF $100,000

Los Angeles, Cal., June 13.—"I will all I have to Mrs. Keech."

With these eight words written on the back of a black check, Orville A. Stevens disposed of his $100,000 estate. Stevens was owner of the Strand cafe at Venice, near here.

in Wednesday's papers?

IT doesn't matter how much it takes to satisfy you in clothes; you want it all—anything short of that isn't enough. We guarantee that you'll "get it all" in our clothes; if you don't—your money back. You decide it.

This, with a guarantee of all wool; correct in style; fast colors; carefully tailored; leaves nothing for you to ask for—We shall do our part to see this guarantee is carried out.

Unusual styles—great values for young men

YOU will find here the very latest ideas from Hart Schaffner & Marx designers—exclusive with us—the famous waist-seam suits in single and double-breasted models; many variations in pockets, lapels, backs, most attractive patterns and colorings; all wool.

These models give a tall, slender-waisted, broad shouldered effect; very special values at

Good Blue Suits And Waist-Line Models

You might think from what you read in the papers, that choice suits at from $30 to $40 are quite plentiful around town. But if you have some such price in mind, especially if you want a Blue Serge, or a Blue Unfinished or a really correct waist-line model, you may as well come to Kennedy's first instead of last. Because here is where you'll find the widest variety of such suits at such prices, and the styles and qualities are such as no other store feels able to offer at such moderate prices.

Blue Serges

Excellent quality of fabric, excellently tailored, in full-lined, perfect-fitting, conservative models. At present wholesale prices, they could not be marked at less than $40. We're selling them at

$30

Blue Serges

Here's a little better quality of very fine weave Blue Serge fabric which we offer, both in conservative models and in snappy styles for young men. It's a most remarkable value at

$35

Gray Suits in Waist-Line Models

These are all made in the delightful Rambler model which is in such great demand. There's nothing else exactly like it, nor quite so attractive to young men and men who feel young. There are two shades of gray in three different fabrics as follows:

Dark Gray Cheviot $30 Medium Gray Flannel $35 Dark Gray Unfinished $38

Blue Unfinished

Waist-line models—one of the smartest we've seen—in a blue unfinished worsted which many prefer to Blue Serge. Quarter lined and extra well tailored.

$38

Blue Unfinished

Beautifully tailored by The House of Kuppenheimer in two models, one the conservative Biltmore, full lined, the other a half-lined double breaster.

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Community spirit promotes the growth of towns and cities and helps individual citizens by united action on the part of the many. It is as big a public asset as a place can possess. It makes the most of natural advantages, and has made great cities out of places which had none. But to make community spirit wholly effective, it must go beyond interest in municipal, local government of a high standard, beyond desire for good schools and the efficiency of law and order, the usual civic public service departments.

Impressive Values and Breadth of Selection Are Some of the Reasons

Why Men Buy Clothing Here

—and these are reasons why our business in men's clothing has grown so steadily season after season, until now it has reached a volume much greater than we ever anticipated a few years ago. Because of the high place which we occupy in mercantile activities, our tremendous buying advantages and our policy of fairness to all, we are able to keep our margin of profit at the lowest possible point.

Vestless "Breezweve" Suits

An ideal suit for change-able days; cool, yet does not chill in cold weather; changes to cool.

"Breezweve" is a patented wool-and-cotton mixture with a hard, twisted finish; doesn't muss up like a flannel suit; holds shape long.

In plain brown, gray, heather and pleasing stripe effects; well tailored.

MURAD

THE TURKISH CIGARETTE

Reflect as much as you like —your decision will be in favor of Murad—because 100% pure Turkish tobacco gives them that old-fashioned Turkish taste.

No other tobacco can give a cigarette such charm, appeal and finish.

It is true that "ordinary" cigarettes cost a trifle less.

Judge for yourself—!

CAMELS' expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos answers every cigarette desire you ever had! Camels give such universal delight, such unusual enjoyment and satisfaction you'll call them a cigarette revelation!

If you'd like a cigarette that does not leave any unpleasant cigaretty aftertaste or unpleasant cigaretty odor, smoke Camels! If you hunger for a rich, mellow-mild cigarette that has all that desirable cigarette "body"—well, you smoke some Camels as quickly as you can!

Camels' expert blend makes all this delightful quality possible. Your personal test will prove that Camel Cigarettes are the only cigarettes you ever smoked that just seem made to meet your taste!

Compare Camels for quality and satisfaction, with any cigarette in the world at any price!

18 cents a package

Camels are sold everywhere in the attractive, moisture-proof Camel packages—20 cigarettes in a glassine paper-covered carton. We strongly recommend this handy package for the home supply or office use.

This Day in Our History—June 13, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the birth in 1786 of Winfield Scott, who successfully led the U. S. army in the Mexican War and who distinguished himself on many fields of battle. He was too old to take an active part in the Civil War, and died on May 29, 1866, at West Point.

A Chinese Iron Mine

CHINA'S famous iron mine, the Tayeh, the best-known in the Far East, is notable for the ease with which it is worked. It stands first in the world in this respect, excavation requiring no machine power. The work is done by hand by Chinese coolies. The mine is reputed to be inexhaustible in its ore.

Here, as I write, glancing at an open history of America, I read [illegible] civilization, when tested by White [illegible]

What Is the Ideal Modern Wife?

MANY an American warrior, who never dreamed, prior to the war, of marrying outside of his native land, has found his ideal of womanhood overseas. Witness the number of brides taken by our service men.

This romance phase of the war has brought to the fore the absorbing question of what is the best kind of a mate for a man.

Has war broadened or in any other way changed the general masculine view toward womanhood. Our young men have acquired a stern realization of life. Will they be more critical in their search for a wife?

Exactly what is the ideal modern wife?

The Boston American invites its masculine readers to send in their ideas on this interesting question.

A prize of $25 will be awarded for the letter which, in the opinion of the judges, embodies the clearest and most unbiased answer. For the letter adjudged second best $10 will be awarded, and for the letter adjudged third best $5.

The decisions will be made by Beatrice Fairfax.

Confine your letter to 200 words, write on one side of the paper only and give your name and address. Only initials will be used if you so prefer.

The contest closes Saturday noon, June 14. No letters received after that date will be considered. The announcement of the winners will be made during the week of June 23.

Address letters to Boston American Magazine Page, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Wild Animals in Captivity

STATISTICS prove that the lives of wild beasts in captivity are much shorter than when at liberty. The tiger and panther in captivity do not live more than seven or eight years; lions a little longer; hyenas five to six years, and the brown bear seven to eight, although they often reach twenty when at liberty.

Jack London's Last Novel HEARTS OF THREE Never Before Published

By JACK LONDON

Author of "The Call of the Wild," "The Valley of the Moon," "The Sea Wolf," "The Iron Heel," "White Fang" and Other Famous Novels

The theme of this story was suggested to the author by Charles W. Go dard.

CHAPTER XIV.

"WE can't be a million miles away from it," Henry said, as the trio came to pause at the foot of a high, steep cliff. "If it's any further on, then the course lies right straight up over the cliff,' and, since we can't climb it and, from the extent of it, it must be miles around, the source of those flashes ought to be right here."

"Now, could it have been a man with looking-glasses?" Leonica ventured.

"Most likely some natural phenomenon," Francis answered. "I'm strong on natural phenomena since those barking sands."

Leonica, who chanced to be glancing along the face of the cliff farther on, suddenly stiffened with attention and cried, "Look!"

Their eyes fell--wed here, and rested on the rar a point. What they saw was no d an but a steady persistence of white light that blazed and burne like the sun. Following the base of the cliff at a scramble, both men reached, from the density of vegetation, that there had been no travel of humans that way in many years. Breathless from their exertion, they broke out through the brush upon an open space where a not ancient slide of rock from the cliff precluded the growth of vegetable life.

Leonica clapped her hands There was no need for her to point. Thirty feet above, on the top of the cliff, were two big--eyes, oddly a fashion across was--ach of the eyes, their surfaces brazen with some white, reflecting substance.

"The eyes of chi--" she cried.

Beneath the eyes, extending a score of feet up and down the cliff, was a curious triangular output of rock. Almost was like an excrescence on the face of the cliff. The apex of it reached within a yard of the space that ivie vened between the eyes. Rough inequities of surface, and cative clinging on Francis' part, enable him to ascend the ten feet to the base of the excrescence.

Thence, up to the ridge of it, the way was easier. But a twenty-five-foot fall and a broken arm or leg in the midst of such isolation was no pleasant thing to consider, and Leonica, causing an involuntary jealous gleam to ligh t Henry's eyes, called up:

"Oh, do be careful Francis!"

Standing on the top of the triangle, he was gaslol, now into one and then into the other, of the eyes. He drew his hunting knife and began to dig and pry at the right-handed eye.

"If the old gentleman were here, he'd have a fit at such sacrilege," Henry commented.

"The perforated dime is yours," Francis called down, at the same time dropping into Henry's outstretched palm the fragment he had dug loose.

Mother-of-pearl it was, a flat piece, cut with definite purposes to fit in with the many other pieces to form the eye.

"Where there's smoke there's fire," Henry adjudged. "Not for nothing did the Mayas select this God-forsaken spot and stick these eyes of Chia on the cliff."

"Looks as if we'd made a mistake in leaving behind the old gentleman and his sacred knots behind," Francis said. "The knots should tell all about it and what our next move should be."

"Where there are eyes there should be a nose," Leonica contributed.

"And there it is!" exclaimed Francis. "Heavens! That was the nose I just climbed up. We're too close against it to have perspective. At a hundred yards' distance it would look like a colossal face."

Leonica advanced gravely and kicked at a decaying deposit of leaves and twigs evidently blown there by tropic gales.

"Then the nose ought to be where a mouth belongs, here under the nose," she said.

In a trice Henry and Francis had kicked the rubbish aside and exposed an opening too small to admit a man's body. It was patent that the rock-slide had partly blocked the way. A few rocks heaved aside gave space for Francis to insert his head and shoulders and gaze about with a lighted match.

"Look out for snakes," warned Leonica.

Francis grunted acknowledgment and reported:

"This is not a natural cavern. It's all hewn rock, and well done, if I'm any judge." A muttered expletive announced the burning of his fingers by the expiring match stub. And next they heard his voice in accents of surprise: "Don't need any matches. It's got a lighting system of its own--from somewhere above--regular sone gloire. Wouldn't be surprised if we found an elevator, hot and cold water, a furnace and a Swede janitor. Well, an long."

His trunk and legs and feet disappeared, and then his voice issued forth:

"Come on in. The cave is fine."

"And aren't you glad you let me come along?" Leonica twittered, as she joined the two men on the level floor of the rock-hewn chamber, where their eyes quickly accustoming to the mysterious gray percolation of daylight, they could see near the mouth. "If I hadn't been along, most likely by this time you'd have been a mile away, arguing around the cliff and going farther and farther every step you took."

"But the place is bare as old Mother Hubbard's cupboard," she added the next moment.

"Naturally," said Henry. "This is only the ante-chamber. Not so silllly would the Mayas hide the treasure the conquistadores were mad after. I'm willing to wager right now that we're almost as far from finding the actual treasure as we would be if we were not here, but in San Antonio."

Like the Egyptians

Twelve or fifteen feet in width and of an unascertainable height, the passage led them, what Henry judged, forty paces, or well over a hundred feet. Then it abruptly narrowed, turned at a right angle to the right, and, with a similar right angle to the left, made an abrupt into another spacious chamber.

Still the mysterious percolation of daylight guided the way for their eyes, and Francis, in the lead, stopped as suddenly that Leonica and Henry, in single file behind, collided with him. Leonica, in the centre, and Henry on her left, they stood abreast and gazed down a long avenue of humans, long dead, but not dust.

"Like the Egyptians, the Mayas knew embalming and mummifying," Henry said, his voice unconsciously sinking to a whisper in the presence of so many unburied dead, who stood erect and at ease, as if still alive.

All were European-clad and all exposed the impassive faces of Europeans. About them, as to the life, were draped the age-old-tien habiliments of the conquistadores and of the English pirates. Two of them, with visors raised, were encased in rusty armor. Their swords and cutlasses were belted to them or held in their shrivelled hands, and through their belts were thrust huge flintlock pistols of archaic model.

"The old Maya was right," Francis whispered. "They've dedicated the hiding with their mortal remains and been stuck up in the lobby as a warning to trespassers. Say! If that chap isn't a real Iberian. I'll bet he played hazial, and his fathers before him."

"And that's a Demosthenian man if ever I saw one," Henry whispered back. Perforated dimes to pieces of eight that he poached the fallow deer and fed the king's wrath is the first forecastle for the Spanish Main."

Suddenly Leonica shivered, clinging to both men. "The sacred things of the Mayas are deadly and ghastly," she said. "And there is a classic vengeance about it. The would-be robbers of the treasure-house have become its defenders, guarding it with their unperishing clay."

They were loath to proceed. The garmented specires of the ancient dead held them temporarily spellbound. Henry grew melodramatic.

"Even to this far, mad place," he said, "as early as the beginning of the conquest, their true-hound noses led them on the treasure-scent. Even though they could not get away with it, they won unerringly to it. My hat is off to you, pirates and conquistadores! I salute you, old gallant plunderers, whose noses smell you out gold and whose hearts were brave sufficient to fight to it!"

"Hush!" Francis concurred, as he urged the other two to traverse the angle of the ancient adventurers. "Old Sir Henry himself ought to be here at the head of this procession."

Thirty paces they took, ere the passage elbowed as before, and at the very end of the double row of mummies Henry brought his companion to a halt as he pointed and said:

"I don't know about Sir Henry, but there's Alvaro Torres."

Under a Spanish helmet, in decapitated medieval Spanish dress, a big Spanish sword in his brown and withered hand, stood a mummy whose lean brown face for all the world was the lean, brown face of Alvaro Torres. Leonica gasped, shrunk back, and crossed herself at the sight.

Francis released her to Henry, advanced, and fingered the cheeks and lips and forehead of the thing, and laughed reassuredly.

"If only such Alvaro Torres were as dead as this dead one is. I haven't the slightest doubt, however, but what Torres descended from him--I mean before he came here to take up his final earthly residence as a member of the Maya treasure guard."

Leonica passed the grim figure shuddeeringly. This time the elbow passage was very dark, compelling Henry, who had changed into the lead, to light numerous matches.

"Hello!" he said, as he paused at the end of a couple of hundred feet. "Here on that for workmanship. Look at the dressing of that stone!"

From beyond gray light streamed into the passage, making matches unnecessary to see. Half into a niche was thrust a stone the size of the passage. It was apparent that it had been used to block the passage. The dressing was exquisite, the sides and edges of the block precisely aligned with the place in the wall into which it was made to dovetail.

"I'll wager here's where the old Maya's father died," Francis exclaimed. "He knew the secret of the balances and leverages that pivoted the stone, and it was only partly pivoted, as you'll observe--"

"Look," Henry interrupted, pointing before him on the floor at a scattered skeleton, "it must be what's left of Jim. He fairly recent, or he would have been mummified. Most likely he was the last visitor before us.

"The old priest said his father led men of the tierra caliente here," Leonica reminded Henry.

"Also," Francis supplemented, "he said that none returned."

A Bullet Hole

Henry, who had located the skull and picked it up, uttered another exclamation and lighted a match to show the others what he had discovered. Not only was the skull dented from a sword or a machete, but a shattered hole in the back of the skull showed the unmistakable entrance of a bullet. Henry shook the skull and was rewarded by interior rattling; shook again, and shook out a partly flattened bullet. Francis examined it.

"From a horse-pistol," he concluded aloud. "With weak or greatly deteriorated powder, because, in a place like this, it must have been fired pretty close to point blank range and yet failed to go all the way through. And it's an aboriginal skull all right."

A right-angled turn completed the elbow and gave them access to a small but well-lighted rock chamber. From a window, high up and barred with vertical bars of stone a foot thick and half as wide, poured gray daylight. The floor of the place was littered with white-picked bones of men. An examination of the skulls showed them to be those of Europeans. Scattered among them were rifles, pistols and knives, with here and there a machete.

"Thus far they won, across the very threshold to the treasure," Francis said, "and, from the looks, began to fight for its possession before they laid hands on it. Too bad the old man isn't here to see what happened to his father."

"Might there not have been survivors who managed to get away with the loot?" suggested Henry.

But at that moment, casting his eyes from the bones to a survey of the chamber, Francis saw what made him say:

"Without doubt, no. See those gems in those eyes. Rubies, or I never saw a rhuy!"

They followed his gaze to the stone statue of a squat and heavy female who stared at them red-eyed and open-mouthed. So large was the mouth that it made a caricature of the rest of the face. Beside it, carved similarly of stone, and on somewhat more heroic lines, was a more hideous male statue, with one cap of proportioned size and the other ear as grotesquely large as the female's mouth.

"The beauteous dame must be Chia all right," Henry grinned. "But who's her gentleman friend with the elephant ear and the green eyes?"

"Search me," Francis laughed. "But this I do know: those green eyes of the elephant-eared one are the largest emeralds I've ever seen or dreamed of. Each of them is really too large to possess fair carat value. They should be crown jewels or nothing."

"But a couple of emeralds and a couple of rubies, no matter what size, should not constitute the totality of the Maya treasure," Henry contended. "We're across the threshold of it, and yet we lack the key——"

"Which the old Maya, back on the barking sands, undoubtedly holds in that sacred tassel of his," Leonica said. "Except for these two statues and the bones on the floor, this place is bare."

As she spoke she advanced to look the male statue over more closely. The grotesque ear centered her attention, and she pointed into it as she added: "I don't know about the key, but there is the keyhole."

True enough, the elephantine ear, instead of enfolding an orifice, as an ear of such size should, was completely blocked up save for a small aperture that not too remotely resembled a keyhole. They wandered vainly about the chamber, tapping the walls and floor, seeking for cunningly-hidden passageways or ungnessable clues in the hiding place of the treasure.

Man Could Make Another Niagara

It Is Just a Case of Maintaining a Supply—Newspapers and Magazines Are Built on the Same Principle

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

Henry Ford relieved himself from the monotony of his libel suit trial at Mount Clemens the other day by taking a walk with a newspaper reporter.

They conversed of various things, the reporter very likely doing most of the talking.

Mr. Ford edged in the statement, however, that each year approximately forty-one inches of water falls on land and sea. "That is enough," said Mr. Ford, "when harnessed properly and stored efficiently to do the world's work."

We look at Niagara in awe and wonderment. We do not give a thought to the great lakes, the draining of which makes the waterfall possible. We listen to the roar and forget all the elements necessary to the maintenance of the great spectacle.

Niagara is, after all, a simple demonstration of the principles of engineering.

If man needed another Niagara there are a thousand engineers in the world who could build one, and nature, with her constant lifting and dropping of the air's moisture, would keep it going forever.

Mr. Ford's diagnosis of success includes efficient storing and proper harnessing.

Those two things are the simple but necessary elements of success in anything.

Money gains its greatest power from being efficiently stored up and harnessed—sometimes to wrong purposes.

Information gains its greatest value from being properly harnessed in newspapers and magazines and books and efficiently stored in libraries, both public and private.

In the business of publishing newspapers and making magazines there are scores of failures to one success. There are a hundred little trickling streams to one Niagara.

The reason for the failures is that there is too little attention paid to the "efficient storing and proper harnessing."

To insure success, there must be a never-failing source of the best material. And that material must be "properly harnessed"—attractively presented—well illustrated—handsomely put together.

The Cosmopolitan Magazine, with the biggest circulation in the world for similar publications, is an interesting demonstration of methods and results both built on the doctrine of always furnishing an output of the BEST and maintaining a supply to keep that output constant.

When you have read ANY issue of The Cosmopolitan, you have read the best literature that that particular month made possible.

Take the June number. A brand-new novel from Robert W. Chambers—"The Crimson Tide"—begins. As you go through the pages, these are the names you see—every one heading the best work the author could furnish for your June reading:

MEREDITH NICHOLSON,	CYNTHIA STOCKLEY,
MARY CAROLYN DAVIES,	JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD,
FRANK R. ADAMS,	HENRY C. ROWLAND,
JACK BOYLE,	SOPHIE IRENE LOEB,
EDITH WHARTON,	JOHN GALSWORTHY,
RUPERT HUGHES,	E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM,
GOUVERNEUR MORRIS,	SAMUEL MERWIN.

When you have read that list you will believe the statement that The Cosmopolitan spends more money for high-class manuscript than any other magazine in the world.

That is looking out for supply. That is the "storing efficiently and harnessing properly" which Mr. Ford says is the foundation of great accomplishment.

That is why The Cosmopolitan is the Niagara of magazinedom.

Don't Help Fill the Promoter's Pocket

That's Where Most of Your Money Will Go if You Buy Advertised Oil Stocks

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

Before you buy advertised oil stocks, remember this:

Your money does not go to the man or the corporation which claims to have oil lands.

Most of it goes into the pocket of the promoter who sells you the stock.

Official investigation of one scheme which was very profitable to those who sold the stock and very unprofitable to those who bought it, shows that on the sale of 300,000 shares at an average of $3.00 a share the promoter got $855,000 and the company $45,000.

Promoters never pay any dividends except to themselves.

When your money goes into a promoter's pocket it is "good-by" so far as you are concerned.

Newspapers willing to sell their columns to thieves and willing, for profit, to join in robbing the public are the only partners fake promoters want.

The same people who stole $855,000 of your money paid $100,000 of it for advertising.

When the officers of the law investigate the promoters they should at the same time call upon the proprietors of those newspapers to explain why they sold their columns for the marketing of what they could not help knowing was worthless.

If they ask any of those publishers if THEY bought any of the stock or even took some of it in return for the use of their columns you may be certain the answer will be "NO."

The one sure way not to lose money in these bald-faced swindles is not to buy. Any owner of oil lands with real oil who needs money for legitimate purposes can borrow all he requires at six per cent. He does not have to advertise for your money.

Keep away from oil stocks. Keep away from any kind of speculation. But especially keep away from investing in anything which promises to pay you more than your money would earn in any legitimate business.

Ye TOWN GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.:—I have had some very unpleasant things said about me by a man who used to be—or I believed to be—a friend of mine.

None of the things he says is true, but there probably are persons who will believe him. Under like conditions what would you do.

J. A. B.

DEAR J. A. B.
I WOULDN'T do anything.
• • •
I'D JUST run along.
• • •
IN MY own way.
AND ON my own path.
AND I wouldn't worry.
OR WISH him hang-nails.
OR GET sore at him.
OR ANYTHING.
BUT IF it happens.
• • •
HE SHOULD find out.
ABOUT SOMETHING you're doing
THAT YOU shouldn't do.
AND TELLS about that.
THEN IF I were you.
• • •
I'D GET sore about that.
AND GO straight to him
AND DARE him to prove it.
AND IF he couldn't.
AND HE was small enough.
I'D BEAT him up.
• • •
BUT IF he could prove it.
• • •
I'D BACK out.
AND FORGET about it.
AND IT'S just the same.
AS THOUGH he were a dog.
INSIDE OF a fence.
ALL THE time snarling.
AT THE other dogs.
OUTSIDE OF the fence.
AND THE sensible dogs.
WOULD JUST trot along.
AND NOT even notice him.
WHILE THE foolish dogs.
WOULD CHASE along the fence.
AND DO a lot of barking.
AND GET all out of breath.

AND IF I were you.
I'D BE a sensible dog.
AND LEAVE him alone.
TILL HE gets out on the road,
AND IS really a menace.
AND JUST in passing.
I WANT to tell you.
• • •
ABOUT A little old lady
OF SEVENTY years.
AND SHE read my column.
AND I met her one time.
AND WE got to be friends.
AND SHE mentioned my name.
TO THE gas bill collector.
AND THE gas bill collector.
SAID IT was really too bad.
BUT THAT I was a drunkard.
• • •
AND THE little old lady
SLAMMED THE door in his face.
AND CALLED up his boss.
AND THE boss was my friend.
AND FIRED the collector.
AND DIDN'T put him back to work.
UNTIL HE apologized to me.
AND I never turned a hair.
WHILE IT was going on.
BUT THE gas bill collector.
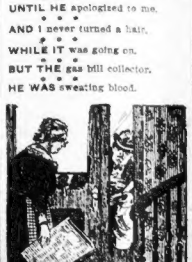
HE WAS sweating blood.



I THANK you.

RIGHT AND RE-WRITE

Breathes there a boy with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said:
"I'd like to join that Boy Scout band,"
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned,
Who never wished and longed and yearned
To be a Scout and with them stand?
If such there be, go mark him well!
He may be rich. He may be swell.
High though his collar, proud his name,
Boundless his toys as wish can claim,
Despite such privity as and pelf,
This lad, all wrapped up in himself,
Living, shall miss no end of fun
And education both in one,
And dying, know beyond a doubt
He should have made himself a Scout.

GOOD CONVICT WORK

Twenty years ago an Allston man secured, through a friend in the wholesale trunk business, a trunk made at Charlestown State Prison. It cost him $5, and it was one tough trunk. It is still a "going concern," as they say in business circles. No baggage-smashing has broken its walls, locks, snaps or hinges. The prison labor turned out honest goods.

LAST RESORT

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
Miss June is so much nearer July First,
When those who scorned the water wagon may
Experiment with water for a thirst.

TOLEDO'S CELEBRATION

It's about time to get advance reports from Toledo of profiteers who have no limit except the blue sky to their charges for temporary lodgings for the Willard-Dempsey fight spectators on July 4. Twenty thousand cots have been installed in thrifty Toledo homes to take care of the overflow from the hotels. Doubtless many a pious matron, who is horrified at the fight being in her fair city, will not shrink from charging like a buccaneer for cot privileges.

WATCH YOUR STEP

Today—Friday, the Thirteenth—the only combination of its kind this year.

NOBODY KNOWS

Talk about keeping 'em down on the farm
After they've seen Broadway,
There's another question of more alarm
Worrying man today.
How does the head of the household know,
As o'er the books he drills,
How he's going to get a vacation, Bo,
After he's paid the bills?

How's he going to have any cash at all
After the rent is paid,
After the milkman and store man call,
After the iceman's raid?
When he has settled the full amount,
When he has squared each dun,
How's he going to have any bank account
Left for vacation fun?

EXCESS PROFITS IN MAINE

Maine farmers are not overlooking any money bets. They bought automobiles with their potato profits. The hay now growing promises a bumper crop, and prices are high. The blueberry blossoms whiten the plains, meaning more income. And the Summer boarder business looks great.

GENUINE DIAMONDS MADE BY MAN

By Garrett P. Serviss

"CAN diamonds be manufactured? If so, what is the process, and can such diamonds be detected by an expert?—E. S."

Yes diamonds can be and have been manufactured, i. e., made through the intervention of the human hand. There is no occasion to "detect" them, since they are genuine in substance and structure, as much so as chickens hatched by incubator are real chickens. But they are of only microscopic size as yet, and it is to be hoped that large ones, suitable to be used in jewelry, will never be made, for that would be the end of the reign of the most beautiful of gems. As soon as a thing becomes common and cheap it must be content with a utilitarian value, like glass, for instance.

From the point of view of science, however, the artificial production of diamonds possesses a very great interest. It was not an eagerness to make millions but a desire to understand nature's ways that led to the discovery of a method of turning amorphous carbon into the crystallized form of carbon called diamond.

Meteorite Gave Hint

One of the first straight hints given to the searchers after the birth secret of the matchless carbon gem was furnished by a diamond-stuffed meteorite that shot out of the sky. It was an iron meteorite and it contained diamonds very minute, like all that have been produced in the laboratory. How had nature made these carbon crystals in the heart of a mass of iron, whose only history, as far as known, was comprised in an indefinite flight through open space, ended by an encounter with the earth? In the search for an answer to that question two facts stood out. (1) The substance of the meteorite had once been melted by intense heat. (2) It had been quickly cooled from without. It was also clear that carbon must have been included in the iron at the start.

From these facts it was concluded that when the mass rapidly cooled on being projected from some unknown place of origin, where it had been intensely heated, into the extreme cold of space its surface had quickly hardened, forming a rigid shell which confined the interior mass, and as this in turn solidified and thereby expanded slightly a great internal pressure was produced, the result of which was to cause the included carbon to crystallize into minute diamonds distributed through the interior mass.

Exactly why the pressure should act in that way is perhaps not very clear, but anyhow, when the conditions above described were artificially produced by Henri Moissan in his electric furnace the result was the formation of minute diamonds like those of the meteorite.

Tremendous Pressure

To get the necessary pressure Moissan imitated the conditions of the meteorite. He heated the iron mass in his furnace to a temperature of more than 7,000 degrees, at which the iron began to volatilize, and then he dropped it into cold water, somewhat as the meteorite, shooting from its parent sun, plunged its blazing surface into the zero bath of heatless space. The manner in which the pressure was produced has been described above.

Inasmuch as carbon is introduced into molten iron in order to harden it into steel, it was naturally asked, after Moissan's experiments, whether minute diamonds might not already have been produced, unknowingly, in metallurgical operations, and it has been found that such was indeed the case, though only in certain cases have the crystals been found large enough to be recognized. When steel is made for special purposes by cooling under great pressure produced by hydraulic apparatus microscopic diamonds are sometimes found imbedded in the mass. It has even been suggested that the property of carbon in hardening steel may arise from its taking the quality of diamond, although not assuming a visible crystalline form.

The great diamond mines of South Africa lie in the choked throats of ancient, extinct volcanoes, which evidently served as giant laboratories, where Nature had at her elbow the forces and the substances needed to make diamonds on a large scale. Fortunately she knew when she had made enough—which man seldom does.

Read Kingsley
York for President?
Two English Cases
Constantinople, for Dinner

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919.)

One hundred years ago yesterday Charles Kingsley was born. Get his book, "Westward Ho" for your boys and girls, and his "Hypatia" for yourself, if you haven't already read it and if you like to be carried out of this dull life into a period more interesting.

Kingsley started out to be a churchman, then became for a little while a radical, discovered, perhaps, that one microbe in a cheese can't change the whole cheese, and devoted himself to fiction.

He was excited when he read in Carlyle that when the French Revolution broke out there was at Meudon, near Paris, a tannery where they tanned human skins exclusively, but there was nothing to be excited about in that.

The luckiest French peasant was the one whose skin was being tanned. For them he was dead beyond the reach of royalty, nobility or brutality, the three ruling powers.

Pershing is coming back in July or August. General Wood has already issued what you may call a political platform. We shall have some military politics. What would happen if York, the young man from Tennessee who killed and captured the Lord knows how many Germans, should run against another hero on this platform, "while they paraded at a safe distance I was on the job killing!"

The I. W. W. organization seems to be thoroughly cosmopolitan. Seven men held at Ellis Island to be deported by the government represented seven nationalities, Danish, Finnish, Austrian, Swedish, Russian, English and Dutch. Not two of the same nationality.

England is excited about two criminal cases. A Welsh miner named Nichols was charged with manslaughter. He called on an "officer and gentleman" to talk over with him the manner in which the "gentleman" had treated the miner's daughter. Before the conversation ended, the miner had beaten the officer and gentleman, so that he died. The judge said there must be no mawkish sentimentality shown by the jury, but the jury acquitted the father, without leaving the jury box.

The unwritten law annoys judges, especialy in England, where law is rigidly enforced. But the same unwritten law accounts for such decency as exists among men, and for whatever safety women enjoy.

The other case that interests London is that of two brothers tarring and feathering a young officer because he was too thoughtful in his attention to the wife of one of the brothers, while he was away at war. England is excited about this case, one of many which lead newspapers to deplore a falling off in the moral quality of English women. It seems that while home fires were kept burning the head of the house being away, there were often two to put wood on the fire. That always happens in war, which is why they make such a fuss about Ulysses' wife.

Have you ever made the long trip by train de luxe from Paris to Constantinople? If so, you will be interested in the young Frenchman who left Paris in the morning to dine at Constantinople in the evening. By making an early start the thing can be done.

The House of Representatives agree to cut the standing army of the United States from 500,000 down to 300,000. The cut is welcome, releasing 200,000 men for productive work. What this country needs for protection is a strong fleet, submarines and flying ships. In addition many thousands of government owned automobiles employed by the postoffice in letter and parcel post delivery could be used with machine guns in war.

The nation that is able to raise, arm and send three thousand miles across the ocean two million men in one year has demonstrated that it does not need to keep 500,000 men idle under arms.

Here is the latest prohibition news. July 1st is approaching and there will be no more of that news, perhaps. Ponce, metropolis of our happy island Porto Rico, has been drinking hair tonic, at fifteen cents a drink.

Seventy-five thousand bottles of hair tonic went down in a few days, then the government stopped the sale.

The American Federation of Labor votes 25,000 to 4,000 against prohibition of beer.

Illinois is agitated because the Legislature has passed a "search and seizure" bill that will enable the good prohibitionist to search the house of the citizen who had stored away his own oasis.

It is going to be most interesting to watch Uncle Sam swallowing the dose of medicine that he mixed for himself.
